CATHOLIC CHURCH BURNED.

NEARBY TOWN SUFFERS HEAVY LOSS BY EARLY MORNING FIRE.

ANDOVER, Nov. 8.—Fire was discovered in St. Augustine's Roman Catholic church in this place at 2 o'clock this morning.

The flames were first seen in the basement and the fire department extinguished the fire there.

Then the flames shot from the roof of the structure and soon enveloped the steeple, and were beyond control.

Help was summoned from Ballardvale and Lawrence, and engines and men from those places arrived within half an hour, but too late to be of much service.

For a time during the progress of the fire the big lumber yard of Hardy & Cook nearby was threatened, and it was to save this place that the help of the neighboring departments was called.

The church was located on Essex street near Andover square, and in a locality covered with buildings of an inflammable nature.

During the past fortnight the church has been undergoing repairs, and only a few days ago the steeple was painted and a new cross put upon it.

The pastor is in New York.

The general belief is that the fire was due to a defective flue, but many believe that it was of incendiary origin.

The loss was about $25,000; the church being totally destroyed.

A BAD MAN

Is Frank Summers If He Has Been Doing Acts With Which He is Charged.

The capture made by Capt. Moffatt and Officer Ed. Fox, night before last, of Frank Summers, who lives in Carlisle, proved a good one.

He was charged with entering the house of F. H. Coburn on Stevens street. It is also alleged that he broke into the barn of Mr. Plummer in East Chelmsford Oct. 25, and stole a harness; also with entering Dutton's barn in Chelmsford and stealing 19 chickens, which he took to Carlisle and had dressed for market. Not satisfied with this, a sudden streak of humanity struck him and he stole two hives of bees from the premises of Mr. Mansfield, smothering the bees with sulphur. He thought it a pity for the bees to be exposed to the cold snap.

All but one of the chickens were found, and Summer admitted that one of them was cooked and eaten. One of the harnesses has been found, and Ayer Junction officers are engaged in looking up other depredations committed by Summers.

THE CITIZENS PARTY.

FITCHBURG, Nov. 8—The citizens' party is itself again. It has been revived in the hopes of defeating the A. P. A. Caucuses were held last night, and each one was well attended, an average of 50 voters congregating in each place.

It is generally understood that the A. P. A. is to make an effort to get possesssion of the municipal offices, and the purpose of awakening the citizens' party is to gain the allegiance of all republican voters outside of the A. P. A. and in favor of granting licenses. It is also hoped that the democratic and republican parties, as organizations, will ally themselves with the citizens party in the movement to down the A. P. A. Judging from the complexion of last night's caucuses, some success will attend their plans, as democrats and republicans turned out in about equal numbers.

A Resolution Was Proposed.

At a meeting of the republican city committee, last evening, after the regular business was finished, Jerome Manning, Esq., alluded to the treatment of Rev. Mr. Montgomery at the Monday evening rally, and offered the following resolution:

Resolved, that this committee hereby officially disclaims any and all responsibility for the uncivil treatment of Rev. Hugh Montgomery on the evening of Monday, Nov. 5, 1894, at Huntington hall and regrets sincerely that any intended or other discourtesy was offered him; and so earnestly disapproves of the same.

After some debate on the motion for its adoption the resolution was laid upon the table by a vote of 16 to 13. The meeting adjourned to the 14th inst., when the matter will undoubtedly come up again for action.

AFTER THE FIGHT

That Led to the Great Political Sweep.

The Republicans Planning for a Victory.

From state and national politics the attention of politicians turns to the municipal campaign. As in the greater campaign both parties are confident of victory.

Changes come suddenly now. We may go to sleep at night the staunchest democrats and wake up in the morning to find we are republicans. That has been our experience on Nov. 6.

Lowell was considered democratic by a large majority, so was Lawrence. The check list proved this and Marcellus Fletcher would swear to it on a stack of bibles but of what use are the democrats who do not vote the democratic ticket.

The political cyclone, earthquake or whatever it may be termed that swept the country on last Tuesday does not indicate a permanent change in political complexion. It was a change produced by a combination of causes such as may never again exist.

These causes had reference to state and national affairs rather than to municipal matters.

If the checklist shows a democratic majority, it differs in that respect from the election returns for the city.

The question now to be considered is whether the democrats of the city will be democrats at the city election or whether they will vote the republican ticket in that contest also.

It therefore behooves the democracy to select their best men to represent them in every office.

Otherwise defeat may come as in the state and national elections.

The temper of a large number of voters is very uncertain and cannot be trusted very far.

It will be useless this year for any man to force himself upon the voters. They will not have it. They would take delight in nailing such a man. They are all out of sorts as it were, they feel sore after eighteen months of hard times and they are looking for revenge.

If they suspect any man as a mere office seeker for the sake of holding office they will slaughter him.

But if they get every opportunity to make their own selections fairly, openly, squarey, they will stand by the nominees.

This is a peculiar situation. The voters are watching the course of events this year as never before and yet they are not swayed by reason. They vote from impulse and feel satisfied at having overturned the existing order of things, whether for better or worse.

Will it be so in the city election? That will depend upon the wisdom of the political managers directing affairs and upon the candidates nominated.

Already the republicans have begun to plan for victory in December.

Never, perhaps, was there so much at stake in a city election.

Not only is the election of mayor and city council at stake, but the heads of several departments will come up for reelection. The chief of police will end the unexpired term this year, the chief of the fire department will also close his term while as usual there will be a contest over the choice of superintendent of streets and other officers.

Besides the city is to be redistricted next year and if the republicans have the doing of this they can gerrymander the wards so as to give themselves an advantage for years to come.

It is quite likely that the defeat sustained will cause the democrats to get together and work harmoniously for victory.

The A. P. A. element will make itself felt of course against the democracy and the French vote will go mainly to the republican party.

All these things can be overcome, however, by united action if the strongest men the party can command be nominated.

It is expected that the Ward Two caucuses will be largest and liveliest ever held in the ward and there will be fully a dozen candidates for the council. It is the impression in the ward that the delegation to the municipal convention will either be for Freeman B. Puffer or George H. Marston.

There is a strong no license sentiment among the democrats.

Patrick H. Barry of Ward One who has served in the council is a candidate this year. He has strong backing.

The republicans are already planning to carry Ward Five and to elect a republican in Ward Three. They will also endeavor to elect four councilmen in Ward Two which has a democrat this year. That would give the republicans thirteen councilmen. They hope to elect six aldermen and if they succeed in both cases they will have things much their own way for the next few years. If the so called democrats that voted the republican ticket on Tuesday want this they can have it in addition to the state and national victories for republicans.

AUNT DINAH'S PARTY.

Full Moon Shone Outside and the People Gathered in First Church Vestry.

A very pleasant entertainment was the "Aunt Dinah's husking party," held in the Eliot church last evening. The stage scene was a natural reproduction of an old fashioned husking.

The stage was set to represent the interior of a barn, and pumpkins, squashes, hencoops, and grindstones were strewn about, together with a pile of unhusked corn.

All the soloists were attired in "country fashion." The fair opened with a comic dialogue between Robert Leatham and F. W. Lee. Then following the husking scene with a chorus of 18 voices, and solos by Mr. and Mrs. Burns, Mrs. Sherburne, G. F. Sturtevant, Mrs. Dr. Landers, Robt. Leatham, F. W. Lee, Edith Childs and Ruth Pease. After the entertainment refreshments were served.

HIS BRITISH BLOOD

Was Loyal to Gov. Greenhalge's Ancestry, But Under the Wrong Circumstances.

William H. Siddon is an Englishman, (perhaps an A. P. A.,) and when at the Opera house he found that he had paid to see an "Irish" show he was mad, and went out between the acts to drown his anger.

During the play he disturbed every one by waving his hat in the air and yelling, "Hurrah for Greenhalge," "Greenhalge is an Englishman," etc. Officer Tilton gave Siddon all the chance in the world to keep quiet, but he persisted in yelling for Greenhalge and was arrested. In court he pleaded not guilty of drunkenness and said "H'its wat I'ad during the hintervals wat turned me h'over." The court decided that Siddon's demonstration was $12 to the county, and the blooming lad was fined that "hamount." In future Willie will behave himself when among respectable people.

MEN MAY DIE

Probable Fatal Accidents in Our Mills Today.

Men Caught in Belts and Pulleys and Mangled.

A very serious runaway accident occurred at the corner of Merrimack and Palmer streets yesterday. About 5 o'clock in the afternoon as Dr. McAvinnue was walking along Merrimack street at the Palmer street crossing, he was stopped by John Houston of Charles street who asked him to buy a ticket. While they were talking on the crossing, a horse attached to a democrat wagon belonging, it is said, to Councilman Barclay, which was running away down Merrimack, turned into Palmer street striking the two men. Dr. McAvinnue was thrown to the curbing but fortunately was not injured badly, while Houston struck the iron hydrant sustaining a very bad fracture of the skull. He was removed to Dr. Meigs' office where it was found he was in a dangerous condition and he was removed to the General hospital.

The ambulance was on the run this morning attending accident calls and at 11 o'clock had responded to four calls, one a fatality, two probably fatal and the fourth a serious accident.

The first occurred at 8.30 o'clock when Roger Kane, an employe of the Massachusetts mills fell down an elevator well, four stories, breaking his nose and thumb and sustaining internal injuries. He was removed to the corporation hospital.

At 9 o'clock a call from Kendall's mill came in and John Callahan, Sr., a well known operative of this mill, who is familiarly called "Jack," was the victim in this case. A cylinder head burst and Callahan who was near by, was thrown quite a distance striking with great force and sustaining a fractured skull. He was removed to St. John's hospital. He is in a bad condition and it is thought he cannot recover.

A Portugese named Vichirncka, residing at 12 Chelmsford street, was the victim of a fatal accident at White's tannery at 10 o'clock. Vichirncka saw a man inside of a big cylinder, repairing it, and through curiosity looked over the top to watch him. The cylinder suddenly moved and caught his head fracturing the skull. The ambulance took him to St. John's hospital where he died in a short time.

The fourth accident occurred at the Bleachery where William F. Dollard, an employe, was caught in some belting and cut an artery in his arm. He was taken to St. John's and afterwards was taken to his home on Ryan street.

An examination of Kane's injuries was made at the corporation hospital and it was found that his skull is fractured, cheek bone crushed, one rib and his thumb broken. His recovery is very doubtful.

NEW ENGLAND VETS.

Have Protested Against the Use of Upper Brakes on Old Machines In Competitive Tests

The quarterly meeting of the New England States Veteran Firemen's league was held in Veteran Firemen's hall, yesterday afternoon. President William T. Cheswell presiding.

The committee appointed to consider the advisibility of incorporating the league, reported adversely and the report was accepted and adopted.

It was voted to eliminate the benefit association from the league, and a new set of rules for the governing of the benefit branch was adopted, and notice given of proposed amendments to the constitution, to make it comply with the new conditions to be acted upon at the annual meeting, when the new rules of the benefit branch will go into effect.

A protest entered at the Pawtucket muster against upper brakes upon side stroke engines was referred to the league by the board of judges and provoked a heated discussion, and it was finally voted that the whole matter lay over till the annual meeting, in order to have a full vote of the delegates upon the question.

Charles A. Philbrick of Lowell, P. J. Donovan of Charlestown and Thomas P. Barley of Boston, were appointed a committee to audit the accounts of the treasurer.

P. J. Donovan of Charlestown, Thomas G. Gerrish of Lowell, Samuel L. Carpenter of Providence, W. T. King of Cambridge and John Exley of Newton were appointed a committee to nominate officers for the ensuing year.

It was voted that the annual meeting be called at 10 a. m. and President W. T. Cheswell of Boston, Secretary W. H. Hathaway of Hyde Park and Bernard McNellis of Charlestown, were appointed a committee to make all the arrangements for the annual dinner.

A Wideawake Class.

Miss Bryant's Sunday school class gave an entertainment at the Centralville M. E. church last evening, which bore the novel name of "deaf and dumb" social.

The program included piano solo, Miss Gertrude Dunlap, vocal solo, Miss Mabel Coburn; violin and piano duet, Misses Bertha Whitman and Laura Benner; vocal solo, Miss Ethel Tuttle; reading, Miss Margie Elvin; reading, Miss Annie Wiley. Light refreshments were served.

Superior court met yesterday after the election holiday. The first case was that of John Conlon against L. W. Faulkner & Sons for $5000 damages for alleged injuries sustained while shipping a belt from a loose to a tight pulley, there being no shipper. The jury on the case retired in the afternoon and quickly returned with a verdict for the defendant.

The Ring of Friendship.

A party of her young friends called at the home of Miss Edith L. Coggshall on Beacon street last evening, and presented her a beautiful ring. Miss Marion Hovey delivered the presentation address. Afterwards there were games and music.

Not Much Money Bet.

A well known local sporting man makes the assertion that not over $500 were bet on the outcome of the election, and while many fellows said they were looking for bets few were in earnest.

A Power In Gas Stocks.

It is stated that Frederick Ayer of Lowell, is one of the great powers in the Deleware Gas company, being a director of the big concern.

At its conclusion dinner was served in the vestry under the direction of the ladies of the church. The afternoon services were opened with devotional services, conducted by Rev. F. A. Fray of Nashua.

The address was by Dr. W. E. Gibbs of Lawrence on "Unrest," and he was followed by Dr. J. C. Snow of Boston, who spoke interestingly on "The call of today." With appropriate closing exercises the conference came to a close.

RIOTERS SENTENCED.

PLYMOUTH, Mass., Nov. 8.—There was great interest in the superior court proceedings here yesterday when the cases of the Old Colony officials, who were charged with being rioters, came up for sentence. The cases, five in number, have been pending since August, 1893, when the Rockland and Abington Street railway attempted to lay its tracks across the Old Colony rails in the center of the town of Abington. This attempt was opposed by the Old Colony, and a serious riot resulted, in which several people were badly injured.

Among those who figured prominently in the trouble were John C. Sanborn, superintendent of the Plymouth division; Christopher S. Bailey, railroad police officer; Angus L. Fraser, foreman of the corporation blacksmith shop; Emery H. Bryant, roadmaster of the Middleboro division, and John Bolen, a section foreman, all of whom were arrested. After a postponement from last February to this session of the court, the defendants were brought in for sentence yesterday.

Judge Sherman sentenced Sanborn and Bailey to four months in the house of correction, and Angus Fraser and John Bolen to two months each in the same institution. The specific charge upon which the men were indicted was that of inciting a riot, and the maximum penalty is imprisonment not exceeding three years, or a minimum fine of 1 cent without costs. The sentences surprised the citizens. A request for time to settle up their personal affairs before imprisonment was denied by the judge and the men yesterday afternoon went to the house of correction.

SALISBURY'S TRIBUTE

To Czar Alexander's Christianity Was Due the Peace of Europe.

LONDON, Nov. 8.—Ex-Prime Minister Salisbury, in a speech last night on London municipal politics, took occasion to refer to the death of Czar Alexander and expressed on behalf of the Conservative party deep grief because of the death of the ruler. At the beginning of the czar's reign, he said, he had some doubt as to his majesty's attitude, but long before he (Salisbury) left the foreign office he was convinced that Europe owed a debt of gratitude to the czar for the peace the restraint of his high Christian character secured on more than one occasion. A man with lower motive than he might have yielded to temporary irritation—in an autocrat a terrible thing. He left behind him a character that future rulers would do well to study and follow.

ALL IS VANITY

A NOTABLE DIVORCE SUIT IN HIGH LIFE.

Mrs. Vanderbilt Will Receive Three Million Dollars.

NEW YORK, Nov. 8.—Within the past fortnight the final financial arrangements are said to have been made between Mr. and Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, and suit for divorce will be begun under the laws of Rhode Island.

Colonel William Jay has been acting as the representative of Mrs. Vanderbilt since the quarrel was made public. He went abroad last spring, and it is assumed that he has accomplished all that is possible for his client.

W. K. VANDERBILT.

Colonel Jay arrived in this city last week, and Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt came from Newport to meet him. In a brief interview the terms agreed to by Mr. Vanderbilt were made known, and Colonel Jay returned to Newport with Mrs. Vanderbilt.

The sum offered by Mr. Vanderbilt was computed after long and careful consideration by the family lawyer. It is understood to be $3,000,000. As a wife of a multi-millionaire, Mrs. Vanderbilt has naturally a right to a very large sum as dower.

She is not, however, considered to be the injured party in the case, and her husband's generosity to her and her relatives has been in the past unstinted. It is therefore held that she

in receiving an amount of money somewhat larger than the law would possibly require. She will take the sum mentioned in place of alimony and of her right of dower.

It is now a month since Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt returned from Europe and went to Marble House, Newport. The divorce laws of Rhode Island are not difficult. Mrs. Vanderbilt has lived there for the necessary time to enable her to bring suit, as Marble House is really her home.

Her sister, Miss Armide Smith, who resided here in a house not far from the Vanderbilt residence, joined Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt in Paris and came over with her on the Lucania. Miss Smith has since been Mrs. Vanderbilt's guest at Marble House.

W. K. Vanderbilt's relatives are thoroughly in accord with him, and they have shown no sympathetic interest in Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt since her return.

Since her arrival in Newport, Mrs. Vanderbilt has secluded herself. She drives out daily for a couple of hours, and is invariably alone in her phaeton. She drives two spirited black horses, which are the highest steppers on the ocean drive.

While Mrs. Vanderbilt will have the legal custody of her children, it is believed that the two oldest, who are almost grown up, will be allowed to make their choice and live with their father or his family if they wish to.

after the the divorce is decreed is the phase of the case which is now exciting gossip. He is good-looking, amiable and fond of society. There is even a rumor already of the engagement of Mr. Vanderbilt to the widowed Duchess of Manchester, who is a very handsome woman.

Mrs. Vanderbilt's sister, Miss Jennie Smith, married Fernando Yznaga. She arranged an amicable divorce with him and married Mr. Tiffany. Mr. Yznaga then married Miss Mabel Wright.

Another sister, Miss Minnie Smith, married a French nobleman named De Fonbilliot, from whom she is now separated. De Fonbilliot made a brave attempt to live at Mr. Vanderbilt's expense, but is now said to be working.

The remaining sister is the only one who has had no matrimonial unpleasantness. She is unmarried and the devoted friend of Mrs. Vanderbilt.

Did the Jury Err?

HAVERHILL, Mass., Nov. 8. — B. F. Brickett, one of the counsel for the defendants in the liquor cases recently tried at Lawrence, where the aldermen were convicted, claims to have discovered a serious flaw in the verdict of the jury on bringing defendants guilty on the second count, and not the first and third counts.

Death Resulted From Fractured Skull.

BOSTON, Nov. 8.—A. P. Hilton, an electric patrolman employed by the Boston Electric Light company, fell from a pole last night. His skull was fractured, and death ensued a few minutes afterward. While trimming the light, he received a shock which caused him to release his hold.

Killed His Wife.

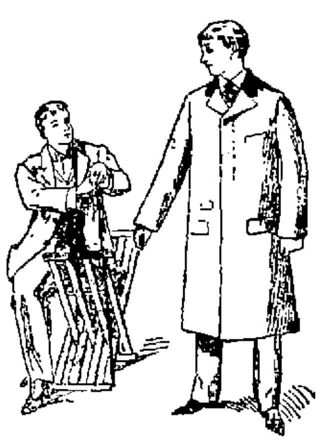

TIVOLI, N. Y., Nov. 8.—Charles Baker quarrelled with his wife while intoxicated, and in his frenzy beat and kicked her most brutally. The woman ran shrieking from the house. Baker followed her into the yard and shot her dead. He then disappeared in the woods.

Strassburg Will Honor Him.

BERLIN, Nov. 8.—Chancellor von Hohenlohe started for Strassburg last night to wind up his affairs there. Strassburg is preparing for a great popular demonstration when he leaves on his return.

Out of the Way.

BERLIN, Nov. 8.—Schame, the anarchist who recently shot a policeman who had arrested him, was yesterday sentenced to 13 years' imprisonment at hard labor, and 10 years' loss of civil rights. Draeger, his accomplice, was sentenced to [illegible] imprisonment.

Nearly every day new customers come to us and are surprised at the quality and style of our ready-to-wear overcoats—"did not expect to find such garments outside the first-class tailor shops."

We would like you to see these overcoats, see how they fit, and compare them with those turned out by the tailors. Ours are equal in every respect but one—the price—in that we are a third to a half lower.

Blues and blacks are mostly used, but browns will be worn by men who are particular to have the newest fashion.

Young men who want the extreme length in overcoats will be interested in the Paddock and Chesterfield.

TAMMANY HURT

New York Is Surprised at the Great Blow.

CLEAN SWEEP OF THE OPPOSITION EVERYWHERE.

By Associated Press to THE SUN.

It's John W. Goff for recorder, too!

The former defeats Hill by fully 150,000, and the latter leads Grant, the Tammany candidate for mayor of New York, by over 50,000.

Goff defeats Smyth for the recordership by a majority which may reach 50,000.

Even Dr. Parkhurst is staggered and the poor old Tammany tiger is so far buried in the public estimation that it is doubtful if even a cage in Central Park or a niche in the Museum will be granted to the democratic pet which has so long preyed upon the city and state of New York.

Dr. Parkhurst in a letter to the press last night, said:

"This victory is so overwhelming as to be staggering. It will take a day or two to recover our equanimity. The result is itself more thrillingly eloquent than anything which can be said about it. It is full of demonstration and suggestion that points a hundred different ways.

"It proves that municipal government need not be a failure in our country, and that it is not going to be a failure.

"The eyes of all classes are opening. In going around among the downtown polling places today the general declaration was: 'We are hoping for better things.'

"The town at large is tired of Tammany. We shall be amazed and indignant inside of a week that we have tolerated the system so long."

A REVIEW OF THE SITUATION.

There is a saying somewhere in the scriptures that "a house divided against itself will fail."

This maxim has an apt application to the fate of the democratic party in its present defeat in city, state and nation.

First of all the dissensions that rent the party in congress, the deadlock between the house and the senate, and the prolonged tariff contention were by themselves utterly disgusting to the country; but combined with the hard times, the want of employment and consequent suffering on all sides, they cast the party into disfavor everywhere and on Tuesday that disfavor was given effect at the polls.

There were the silver men on one side, the sound money men on the other, the southern democrats and the northern democrats, the Hill faction and the Cleveland faction, each at variance with the others and with the whole. With so many factions pulling against one another and against the administration as a whole; with President Cleveland's readiness to write denunciatory letters, the wonder is that even so much was effected during the past two years.

The democratic party has changed the tariff law and changed it for the better. Not even the greatest enthusiasts on the high protective policy can offer any argument to the contrary. But the country was not convinced of this fact. The people had passed through eighteen months of hard times. They had been told that the elevation of the democratic party to power would bring good times; but a variety of circumstances made a prompt change in the tariff impossible.

Delays followed, the people became impatient and many of the unreasoning class resolved to oust the democrats at the first opportunity. They did so and hence the democratic slump all over the country.

Republicans will probably say that this was righteous treatment of the democratic party; but it was not. That party was unjustly charged with responsibility for the panic of republican creation and when by wise legislation it restored prosperity it was practically turned out of office. That is the manner in which the inscrutable will of the people sometimes asserts itself with an apparent disregard for justice; but, nevertheless, the voice of the people must be obeyed.

To the causes which operated generally against the democracy throughout the nation, were superadded in New York state, the opposition to Tammany, the popular movement against corruption as represented by the Lexow committee, and the division between the followers of Hill and those of Cleveland together with the independents. All these combined were sufficient to give the republicans a victory in the city as well as in the state, and Senator Hill, Tammany and all they represent, went down in the general defeat.

The action of President Cleveland in failing to vote is severely criticised. Perhaps it would have been undignified for him to have written a letter or to have said a word in behalf of party interests in New York, but it would not have been any more so than his letter to Congressman Wilson.

That letter was used for campaign material by the republican press all over the country and there came not a word from the president to offset the effect of it.

In this state there was no hope at any time of defeating Gov. Greenhalge. He has made an excellent governor, and the fact that the A. P. A. was reported to be opposed to him brought him many democratic votes.

At the last hour this proscriptive order decided to support the governor and cut Lieut.-Gov. Wolcott, which they did to the extent of their power.

The contest between McEttrick and McNary, and that between Coakley and Cronan, lost a congressman and a state senator to the party, while the defeat of Senator Brady in this city can be attributed in some measure to the same cause—disunion and party treachery.

Thus the disaster that has come to the democratic party is traceable to well defined and unmistakable causes. A study of the figures and their reference to pre-existing conditions may teach democratic leaders to be more discreet in the future. It will show that union, harmony and combined effort are necessary to victory, necessary not only on election day but continuously as a matter of party policy. It will show also that the independent candidate is a dangerous tool in the hands of the enemy and should be met with stern opposition whenever he appeals to democrats for support.

The effect of this sweeping republican victory will be to stop the work of tariff reform, to give republicans control of the national house and perhaps of the senate also. President Cleveland's veto may be the only power that will stand between the country and a reversal of the tariff policy recently put into effect. Prosperity has just started in under the new tariff law and if it continues the republicans will claim that it came as a result of their victory as a sort of industrial complement to their great triumph, and thus its permanency depends upon whether they will hold the reins of government.

I'LL JOIN THE LEAGUE.

The Absurdity of Double Taxation Is Logically Illustrated.

"What! Double taxation here in Massachusetts! Impossible! Give me one instance of it and I'll join the League!" So ought every fair-minded man to say or leave the state, if Massachusetts is to retain its claim to fairness and good sense. So here goes for an illustration, and if it is not convincing to the meanest understanding, let us hear from you!

There are two taxes paid, as there ought to be, one on each property in each state where the property is protected and owes its contribution towards the government it lives under.

I swap with Brown, my stock for his. Now there are four taxes due, one still on each mill and two new taxes on the two lots of stock, although there is no more property than before. How is this? When I was a boy and went to school I was taught two and two made four; now I am a man and pay taxes—a great part of which go for education—I am told by the law that one and one make four.

Is the law absurd or unjust, or was I mistaught when a boy, and am I now cheated when I pay taxes for such a burlesque on education?

Now let Massachusetts race with Maine to see which first will right this wrong, and let every honest and intelligent man join the League with this end in view.

Another illustration. Smith of Chicago has grown up with the city, and now has $1,000,000 worth of property there, stores, elevators, factories and other properties situated in Illinois, and, as is entirely proper, taxed there. All this property is represented by shares in the corporations, even his real estate being incorporated for convenience sake.

He returns to Massachusetts, which he left 40 years ago, with no capital but a common school education and an honest and vigorous character, and wishes to replant his family here and end his days in a community claiming to be equalled by few and excelled by none. What happens? The assessor goes for him armed by our tax law, with the power to collect from him another, this time a Massachusetts tax, on this million of property, already once fully taxed elsewhere. Has another million of property been created by this man's removal from Chicago to Boston? Can property be doubled by the mere fact of the owner traveling a few miles from one state to another? If a millionaire with all his property in Rhode Island steps over the boundary into Massachusetts, does he thereby create another million on which it is proper for Massachusetts to tax him a second time?

No, he does not; it is not proper; it is not just; it is a burlesque on propriety and justice and good sense, but it is the law—our law—Massachusetts law, and unless you join the League you are a partner in the impropriety, the injustice and the folly! And how fortunate it is that property cannot be created with this ease, by merely moving from one state to another, as our law proposes; just think of the excitement and restlessness that would ensue!

Every man would buy a mileage ticket and tear around the country from state to state, doubling his wealth as many times a day as he struck a new state; or if he were young and active he could jump forwards and back again over the boundary line between Massachusetts and Rhode Island until he was rich enough to pay double taxation without a murmur!

You may say this is treating a serious subject with levity; but it is inevitable. Our tax law, now upheld only by the ignorant, who are the enemy of prosperity in any state, is loaded to the muzzle with levity, and when you strip your mind of prejudice and misinformation, and your heart of cupidity, and deal with the subject bared down to the naked facts, you cannot help striking the grotesque and the ridiculous. Life would be altogether too terrible and sad if the spectacle of folly only made us furious; rather let us laugh when we see what fools we have allowed ourselves to be; but then set to work with grim earnestness to establish a better record for ourselves on the score of good sense and justice.

Amusing Fiction.

"Have you read any fiction lately?"

"Yes. I've just been reading a foreigner's description of American life and manners."—New York Press.

The Reason Why.

Why are the cares of life so few?
What makes the sky so clear a blue?
What magic gilds the avenue?
I merely question.
And why are all things changed to me?
I am not bequeathed a legacy,
Nor is it just a case per se
Of sound digestion.

This is the cause of my content:
Last evening to her house I went.
She's been away on pleasure bent
Three months and over.
And now she's home again and bland,
Sweet, smiling, with imprisoned hand
She's given me to understand—
Well, I'm in clover!

MRS. REUBEN GARRETT, King George C. H., Va., writes: "I was taken with grip which finally resulted in pneumonia. Was prostrated for three months. Had a terrible cough and was emaciated and very weak. Was fast drifting into 'quick consumption.' The doctor gave me medicines all the time. I grew weaker. He advised cod liver oil emulsion. I took two bottles of it without any relief. I had pain in my left shoulder and back. I wrote you, and you prescribed your 'Golden Medical Discovery.' I took only one bottle before I felt better. After two bottles I could sit up, and felt I had been saved from the grave. I increased rapidly in flesh and strength."

The Boy and His Natural Enemy.

"You think I don't know nothin about you, don't you?" remarked the street boy to the policeman.

"You know enough about me to keep out of my reach," smiled the officer good naturedly.

"Anybody knows that," retorted the boy in a tone of scorn. "I know more'n that."

"What do you know?" and the officer manifested some interest.

"I know where you get things," said the boy mysteriously.

"What things?" and the officer became more interested.

"Oh, lots of things," and this time the boy winked slyly.

"I know where you got them shoes, for instance."

"Where?" he asked with some curiosity.

"You got 'em on yer feet," and the boy made haste to get beyond their reach.—Detroit Free Press.

Two Rats.

A London journal relates a rat story that is worth repeating. It says a gentleman, on coming home from India on a sailing ship, while in the tropics was one day bathing his hands and arms in a basin full of cool water placed on top of a sea chest. Suddenly a large rat jumped on the chest beside him and looked up in his face; then, placing its fore feet on the edge of the basin, drank long and deep. Although usually "rough on rats," the writer says "he had not the heart to hurt that one, for—to make use of a nautical term—'his coppers were hot.'" An acquaintance of mine, a truthful man, told me in Melbourne some years ago that one evening, while sitting on his veranda, with his old tom cat (nearly blind) close beside him, a large rat came from under the veranda, and going straight up to the cat, first with one paw and then the other, soundly smacked his face, then slowly retired once more beneath the veranda."—Boston Herald.

A Walking Fern.

There is a fern which by its peculiarities of growth may almost justly lay claim to the popular name of the "walking fern." The fronds arch over, and the fine slender points coming in contact with the soil take root. New growth again proceeds from the latter, which in its turn roots also, so that the locale of the plant is continually moving forward and suggesting the idea of walking. This peculiar fern is quite hardy and succeeds well in a compost of peat, leaf mold and sand in a shady position which is moist in summer and fairly dry in winter. The fronds are heart shaped, bright green in color, 6 inches to 12 inches long.—Montreal Star.

Philadelphia.

"It may almost be claimed," says Professor Warren P. Laird of the University of Pennsylvania, "that Philadelphia is at once the most curious, the most typical and the most instructive of American cities—curious because of the strange medley of its more pretentious buildings, and their singularly eccentric individualism, typical of American practice in its broadest aspect, because of the absence of restraint and defiance of precedent shown by the great majority of its architects, and instructive because of its contrast, for no other American city has so wide a field of architectural error to offer in contrast to its works of real merit."

HOW TO PRESERVE SKETCHES.

VALUABLE ONES KEPT BY A LITTLE CARE.

Pencil drawings may be rendered ineffaceable by a very simple process. Slightly warm a sheet of ordinary drawing paper; then place it carefully on the surface of a solution of white rosin in alcohol, leaving it there long enough to become thoroughly moistened. Afterward dry in a current of warm air. Paper prepared in this way has a very smooth surface. In order to fix the drawing, the paper is to be slightly warm for a few moments. This process may prove useful for the preservation of plans or designs when want of time or any other cause will not allow of draftsmen reproducing them in ink. A simpler plan than this is to brush over the back of the paper containing the pencil sketch with a weak solution of shellac in alcohol. Chalk and pencil drawings may be fixed, though not so thoroughly as by the above methods, by washing them with skimmilk or with water holding in solution a little isinglass or gum. When milk is used, great care must be taken that no cream remains in it, as it would cause the drawing to look streaky. An easy way to apply these fluids is to pour them into a shallow vessel and lay the drawing flat upon the surface of the liquid, after which remove gently and lay it in an inclined position on white blotting paper to drain and dry.

Pour half a pint of boiling milk, sweetened, into a basin containing two well whisked eggs. Stir the ingredients, put them into a clean saucepan and stir steadily over the fire until a thick custard is produced, taking care it does not boil, or it will be spoiled. Remove from the fire and put aside until cold; then add half a pint of whipped cream to the custard and either a little liquor or a teaspoonful of vanilla essence. Ascertain that the mixture is sweet enough and add some dried cherries and pineapple cut into small pieces and a few drops of carmine, just sufficient to give a pale pink tint.

Put the mixture into a pudding mold with a cover, or an ordinary round cocoa tin that will hold a pint will do quite as well, provided it has a well fitting cover. Stand the tin in a zinc pail, and pack it around tightly with equal quantities of rough ice, broken up into fairly small pieces, and freezing salt. About 3 pounds of each will be required. Then cover the pail entirely with a thick blanket and stand it in a warm corner of the kitchen, near the fire, but not too close, for 3½ hours. Then turn the pudding out of the tin, knocking it on the table if necessary to loosen it, and serve at once.

How to Clean Chamois Gloves.

The best way for cleaning chamois gloves is to put them on the hands and wash them in lukewarm water with white soap. Rinse them in clean lukewarm water and squeeze them as dry as possible. Then dry thoroughly while still on the hands with a clean towel, peel them off the hands and hang in an open window, first carefully pulling them into shape.

How Artists' Models Are Paid.

The regular rate in the art schools is 33⅓ cents an hour, or $10 a week for six days' work of four hours each. If no complaints are made by the art student or class monitor, the model gets a 25 per cent premium. "Good days" are few and far apart, for the poses are 25 minutes long, with only five minutes' rest, and in difficult positions more than human nature can endure. To get off the pose an instant or to keep it in a lazy manner provokes complaint, and although the croaker may be the veriest bungler it counts against the poor model, who may be trying to earn an honest livelihood.

How to Choose Good Lip Salves.

Bad digestion will often assert itself in broken or chapped lips, sores in the corners of the mouth, fever blisters and a coated tongue. Chronic sore mouths should be rubbed with sweet oil or pure glycerin at night. In the morning wash with a solution of alum or borax, a teaspoonful in a tumbler of water. Camphor ice is both healing and cleansing. Good cold cream is not a bad salve. All the druggists have supplies and cheerfully dispense 5 cent quantities. Citron ointment is one of the old reliable lip salves kept by all chemists. It is applied to the sore with a soft linen cloth. When the mouth is sore, the diet should be changed to vegetable foods.

How to Boil Halibut.

Tie it nicely in a linen cloth, put it in a kettle of cold water, enough to cover it, and add a tablespoonful of vinegar and a little salt, and after the water begins to boil let it boil from 15 to 20 minutes, and the fish is done. Lift it out carefully and let it drain a couple of minutes before serving. Egg sauce is a drawn butter made of milk instead of water, with hard boiled eggs chopped fine and stirred in just before serving. Pour this sauce over the fish and garnish with sprigs of parsley, and it is ready to serve. The potatoes should be peeled, and if not small enough cut as small as walnuts, boiled or steamed, and rolled in melted butter and chopped parsley before serving.

How to Remove Dried Paint.

To remove paint that has dried in a fabric put the soiled spot over a dish and pour spirits of turpentine over it and let it stand for several hours. Then take the fabric in the hands and rub briskly. To remove paint that has just been acquired pour coal oil on the fabric. A brisk rubbing with a clean cloth will bring the paint right out. Hang the garment in the air, and the coal oil and turpentine will evaporate. If in haste, rub in gasoline and hang in the sun.

According to Plan.

"Why do you leave me alone every evening?" asked Mrs. Mullins tearfully as her husband put on his hat preparatory to going out.

"Why, my dear," replied he, "I married you for yourself alone."—New York Sun.

INDIAN JUDGES.

The Sioux Have Three of Them, and They Have Some Funny Cases.

Sioux Indians in North Dakota have a court of their own, in which three judges dispense justice. They hold court in a large tepee emblazoned with many colored pictures of horses, owls and eagles. Big Mane, Black Elk and Sam White Bird are the judges. They wear store clothes, and Judge Mane sports a watch and chain. They are at liberty to call court for any hour of the day they see fit. When a session of court is called, the Indian agent sends out Indian policemen to notify witnesses to appear in court at the appointed time. If, when court meets, it is found that some of the witnesses summoned have failed to put in an appearance, Indian police are again sent out, and they never return without bringing in the person or persons they were sent after. The judges themselves examine the witnesses, displaying considerable ingenuity in drawing from the reluctant and bashful witness his or her testimony.

When the examination has been completed, the tent is cleared, and the judges consult until they arrive at a decision. All offenses against common law as well as tribal laws, sun, scalp or war dances and the practicing of medicine men come before them for adjudication. A record of each case is carefully kept after the following fashion: "Chasing Crane was arrested by police for stealing Solomon Yellow Hawk's wife. Was sent up for 90 days at hard labor."

Bull Talker had a row with Mrs. White Deer, and she gave him an unmerciful drubbing. He was exceedingly crestfallen at being whipped by a woman, but his wife was not to be trifled with and was not disposed to see her husband imposed upon and thrashed by Mrs. White Deer, so she had the amazon arrested on the charge of "fighting and beating my husband." The trial was held in due time, the charges were sustained, and Mrs. White Deer was required to serve ten days in the agency jail.—New York Advertiser.

ON A CHERRY STONE.

A Talented Convict Carves There His Petition For a Pardon.

Gesa Berger, the actor and newspaper man, has a picture in caligraphy that has a remarkable history. It is in size 30 by 42 inches and is the work of Joseph Loew, the most noted counterfeiter that the Austrian government ever knew.

When an application is made for a pardon in Austria, the red tape policy of that country compels the applicant to address the emperor with all his titles. Emperor Ferdinand had about 40 titles. Loew engraved all of these names, together with his petition for a pardon, on a cherry stone.

The letters were so fine that it required the aid of a powerful microscope to decipher them. One day, when the emperor visited the prison, Loew in person presented a cherry stone to the emperor and told him what it contained. The emperor made an examination and was so amazed at the work that he gave him an unconditional pardon. Not only did he pardon him, but gave him a position as a detective to trail down counterfeiters. Loew was a well informed man in all the arts and rascalities of counterfeiters, and in less than two years after his pardon he ran to the earth almost every counterfeiter in Austria and died a few years ago covered with detective honors. The picture, although made 50 years ago, is in a remarkable state of preservation.—Chicago Times.

Egypt's Cotton Crop.

Eight or ten years ago Egypt was insolvent. Today she is bristling with prosperity. The position of the fellaheen is constantly improving. The corvee is abolished, and the people have no more compulsory labor, except to keep the Nile within bounds at high flood, for which they are paid. The land taxes are gradually being reduced, and extortion and corruption seem to have been stamped out. She sells cereals enough to pay for the imported articles necessary to maintain her simple standard of life. I can't help thinking that cotton—or the money it produces—has played a part of no small importance in the work of administration that has brought all these blessings.

A birdseye view of the area of cotton cultivation would give the outline of a half opened fan. From the point of the delta near Cairo it stretches nearly to Port Said on the northeast and beyond Alexandria on the northwest, this simile being helped by the great arc curving into the Mediterranean, the narrow strip devoted to cotton along the Nile from Cairo, 100 miles southward, forming the handle. This area is veined with innumerable canals, branching from the Rosetta and Damietta arms of the Nile, which distribute the vitalizing waters.—North American Review.

How Samson Would Fight Corbett.

Some one in the crowd asked Strong Man Samson if he had ever had a setto with a boxer.

"I never have," said the athlete, "but I thought one time of challenging Corbett, and for three months I hatched a theory of attack and defense. My family objected to my engaging in any such contest, and I abandoned the idea. My idea of conquering the champion pugilist was to reverse the tactics of all fighters, which is to keep out of reach of their opponent's arm, and to keep so close to him in the battle as to render it impossible for him to strike with his full power at arm's length. At the same time my scheme was to play on his arm and wrist and to disable him with a few well directed blows at those points. I thought of putting myself in training for three months or more under the direction of a competent trainer. I'll guarantee that, if an experienced fighter will adopt my tactics, he can best Corbett. I don't claim to be a pugilist, and a good boxer could undoubtedly knock me down despite my strength."—Washington Post.

CURIOSITY SHOP CHATTER.

SOMETHING ABOUT THE ANCIENT CHEMISTRY.

An Egyptian Alchemist's Laboratory in the Sixth or Seventh Century, B. C.—A Unique Manufacture—Population of the Earth.

Long before chemistry became a science many of its processes and apparatus were in common use. Professor H. Carrington Bolton has made a list of some of these, finding that the Egyptians were acquainted with the process of glassmaking at least as far back as 2500 B. C.; that crucibles of the fifteenth century B. C. are now in the Berlin museum, and that siphons also were used in the fifteenth century B. C. Blowpipes and bellows were early employed.

The earliest chemical laboratories now known were those of the Egyptian temples, in which the priests prepared the incense, oils, etc., used in the temple services. The Bible contains frequent chemical allusions. Cupellation is plainly described by Jeremiah, metallurgical operations by Job, Ezekiel and others, and bellows by Jeremiah.

Geber, the Arabian physician of the eighth century, wrote minutely of chemical processes. He described solution, filtration, crystallization, fusion, sublimation, distillation, cupellation and various kinds of furnaces and apparatus.

Perhaps the earliest drawings of strictly chemical apparatus are the figures of distilling apparatus in a Greek papyrus of the eleventh century. An alchemist's laboratory of the sixth or seventh century was uncovered in Egypt in 1885, and its contents included a bronze furnace, about 60 bronze vases with beaks and some conical vessels resembling sand baths.

The balance as an instrument of precision reached a high development under the Arabians as early as the twelfth century, when very accurate specific gravity determinations were described.

A Unique Manufacture.

An industrial journal notes the curious fact that at only one establishment in the world is the "siren" fog signal manufactured. The instrument consists of two superposed disks with a like number of holes, one disk being stationary, and the other revolving, while at the same time air or steam is forced through the holes. When the holes are opposite each other, the steam will pass. When not opposite, the passage of the steam is stopped.

Thus when one of the disks revolves the steam passes in a series of puffs, and if these puffs succeed each other with sufficient frequency a note is produced, rising in pitch with the rapidity of revolution and increasing in power with the pressure of the steam. The disks are revolved by a small steam engine, which also opens and closes a valve to allow for the passage of the steam and thus gives what is known as the characteristic sound, for a siren used as a fog signal does not sound continuously, but gives a certain number of blasts of a definite length per minute. The steam is supplied by a boiler both for the engine and the siren, and to avoid possible breakdowns the boilers, engines and sirens are always in duplicate.

The Law of Finding.

The law of finding was declared many years ago, and it is well to note the case and the decision, says Business. A visitor to a store found a wallet containing a sum of money. He handed the wallet, with its contents, to the merchant to be returned to the owner. After three years, the owner having failed to appear, the finder demanded the wallet and the money from the merchant. The merchant refused to deliver them on the ground that they were found on his premises. The finder then sued the shopkeeper. It was decided that against all the world but the owner the title of the finder is perfect. The receiver of an article found is only the trustee, first of the owner, then of the finder if the owner does not appear. The receiver has no right to keep an article against the finder any more than the finder has to keep it against the owner.

Superstitions About Salt.

The spilling of salt has for generations been counted unlucky in many parts of England and Germany. A curious picture of medieval art on the subject of "The Last Supper" represents Judas Iscariot overturning the salt, a dark foreshadowing of an awful doom.

In the isle of Man there is a lingering superstition that to carry salt in the pocket is a help to good fortune, and to exchange or accept salt is so good an omen that a beggar has been known to decline food unless salt was added to the gift.

Satan and the witches were believed once on a time to hate salt with an inveterate hatred, and it was the custom to torment the arch fiend by sprinkling salt in a coffin, and brewers drove away the witch tribe by throwing a handful of salt on the top of the mash.

Animals Admitted to Heaven.

According to the Moslem's creed, ten animals are admitted into paradise besides man: 1. The dog Kratim, which accompanied the seven sleepers of Ephesus. 2. Balaam's ass, which spoke with the voice of a man to reprove the disobedient prophet. 3. Solomon's ant, of which he said, "Go to the ant, thou sluggard." 4. Jonah's whale. 5. The ram of Ismael, offered in sacrifice instead of Isaac. 6. The calf of Abraham. 7. The camel of Saleh. 8. The cuckoo of Belkis. 9. The ox of Moses. 10. Mohammed's mare called Al Borak. The following are sometimes added or substituted: The ass on which Jesus rode into Jerusalem and the ass on which the queen of Sheba rode when she visited Solomon.

Population of the Earth.

Europe, 357,379,000; Asia, 825,954,000; Africa, 163,953,000; America, 121,713,000; Australia, 8,230,000; oceanic islands, 7,420,000; polar regions, 80,400; total, 1,479,729,400. This estimate is credited to Drs. Wagner and Suparo (Gotha, 1891). The estimate of area of the continents and islands by the same authorities is 52,821,684. Ravenstein's estimate of the earth's fertile region in square miles is 28,269,200; steppe, 13,901,000; desert, 4,180,000; polar region, 4,888,800. The population of Europe hardly exceeded 50,000,000 before the fifteenth century.

Paddle Your Own Canoe.

This expressive phrase, according to Walsh, first appeared in a poem published in May, 1854. The following stanzas give a fair example of the whole:

> Voyager upon life's sea,
> To yourself be true,
> And whatever your lot may be
> Paddle your own canoe.
> Leave to heaven in humble trust
> All you will to do,
> But if you would succeed you must
> Paddle your own canoe.

Belle—Well, he and his wife could live on "bread and cheese and kisses," couldn't they?

Nell—Yes, they might, but Tommy hasn't been able to find any girl who could provide the necessary bread and cheese as yet.—Somerville Journal.

FROM OUR 5 O'CLOCK EDITION Of Yesterday.

CONGRESSMEN ELECTED.

Only One Democratic Congressman to Go to Washington From Massachusetts.

By Associated Press to THE SUN.

BOSTON, Nov. 7.—From meagre returns from the First Congressional district Rice of No. Adams is elected. Gillette of Springfield also wins but by a narrow margin.

Cong. Apsley is re-elected by 6000; Walker by 7000; Knox by 3500, in the fifth district; Cogswell by 4000 in the sixth district; William E. Barrett defeated Hamilton in the seventh by 6000; John Fitzgerald, the only democrat to go to congress from Massachusetts, won by 1916. In the fighting 10th the largest vote in its history was polled and Atwood, rep., won by 1000; Congressmen McCall, Morse and Draper easily win in their respective districts. Simpkins' majority over "Bob" Howard in Fall River is less than 1200.

BLANKETTY-BLANK.

Strange as it may seem there are voters and many of them who as yet are either ignorant of the manner of voting or are indifferent to the success of the democratic ticket.

A large number of blanks were cast, except in precinct four of Ward One, where they were very few. It is impossible to determine the exact number of blank ballots cast, as the record of them in some cases was not given. However, enough is given to show that in some cases the results would have been different had all the voters marked a ballot.

In all wards the number of blanks on the question of amending the constitution was quite large, which is not surprising, as very few people understood the matter, and fewer were interested in it. In Ward One the blanks were quite few. In the gubernatorial contest in this ward, there were five blanks in precinct one and eight in precinct three. There were none in precinct four and the same number in precinct two. Over 20 blanks were cast in the senatorial contest in that ward, thirteen coming from precinct one where Brady beat Foss 17 votes. Twenty-three blanks were cast in the representative contest.

The Centralville voters cast a few blanks and in four precincts in Ward Two in the vote for governor cast 32 blanks. The blanks in the senatorial contest in this ward amounted to 57 and to 74 in the representative fight. In the congressional fight 65 blanks were noted.

In Ward Three the blanks in four precincts were: governor 37, senator 57, representative, 78, congress 59.

In precinct two of Ward four on the vote for governor 50 blanks were cast while in the other four precincts all told, there were but 20. The five precincts of Ward five threw 51 blanks.

And here is how the republicans dealt with Foss in Ward Four. They threw 102 blank ballots in this contest while in the congressional fight only 47 blanks were cast. Ward Five in the senatorial contest failed to improve 77 opportunities to vote either way, and Fifield and Knox lost their share of 50 ballots which were blank in the Fifth Ward.

The most surprising feature of the blank ballot casting was the number cast in the representative contest in these two wards. One would think with all the candidates up that there would be no difficulty in voting for three on either or both sides but the results are; Ward Four 654 blanks, Ward Five, four precincts, 463.

In Belvidere the blanks cast were very few in number.

There was a chance to change Fifield's vote in this city had voters not thrown blanks.

LOST IN A SWAMP.

Two Gunners Have Not Been Seen Since Monday.

By Associated Press to THE SUN.

WHITMAN, Nov. 7.—Daniel W. Powers and Bradford E. Bryant of this town, who were out gunning, were lost during the big storm of Tuesday morning in the cedar swamp at Halifax and Hanson, and this morning a party of more than 200, under the direction of Deputy Sheriff S. O. Coob, is at work trying to find them. They have not been seen since early Monday morning.

Policeman Was Mistaken.

It was a good joke on a policeman yesterday while a woman was coming out of Brown Bros., store, at the corner of Merrimack and Dutton streets, she dropped a large bundle from under her shawl. She picked it up hurriedly and moved and then suspiciously started to run but was stopped by an officer who asked her to step into the store. She did so and after some inquiries Mr. Brown told the officer that the woman was one of his best customers. She explained that she had read THE SUN advertisement of the firm on underwear and had visited the store and bought a lot. She was hurrying home to tell her neighbors of the bargains. If you want underwear be sure and call.

CHICAGO, Nov. 7.—Mayor Hopkins admits the republicans have carried the city by 15,000 and the state is also claimed by 70,000.

Mr. Rivets Statement.

Lawyer Rivet denies the statement credited to him in THE SUN to the effect that the A. P. A. is opposed only to Irish Catholics. Mr. Turcotte says there was no deception in calling the rally of last Sunday although resolutions were passed upon Mr. Mercier's death. THE SUN'S account of the rally was obtained from a gentleman who was present but who evidently got things a little mixed.

THEIR "AT HOME."

Society Pays Its Respects to Capt. Prince and His Bride.

The at home reception of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur D. Prince was the pleasant event of last evening, at the home of the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Prince, on Simpson street.

The reception lasted from 8.30 to 10 o'clock, during which Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Prince assisted in receiving. The ushers were Messrs. George E. Lull, Charles M. Stevens and Wm. J. G. Myers. A very large number of friends paid their respects to the couple, and among those attending were many young married people.

In the dining room the Page company served lunch, and at the urns Miss Ticomb of Boston and Miss Prince presided. Mrs. Chadbourne of Reading was among the guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Prince will be installed in their new home on East Merrimack street, the latter part of the month.

Bridgeport Physician Who Had to Take the Poor Debtor's Oath Yesterday.

It is stated that Dr. Joseph McCord of Bridgeport, Ct., was taken to jail yesterday, from the Lowell hospital, for debt, and that yesterday forenoon before Judge Frye he took the poor debtor's oath. He is said to owe a Dr. Kimball in Boston $50. Little is known about the case except that Dr. McCord was at Frank Merrill's in Tyngsboro last week, and it is said suffered from an overdose of quinine and was brought into the city for care. The doctor's folks at Bridgeport are said to have deemed to aid him.

HEDGED IN.

Chinese Squadron at the Mercy of the Japanese at Port Arthur.

SHANGHAI, Nov. 8.—The report of the capture of Talienwan by the Japanese has not been confirmed. The reports have been confirmed, however, that the Japanese are steadily repulsing detached bodies of Chinese, and that they have taken Port Kinchau. The Japanese force that landed on Oct. 25 north of Elliot island first marched eastward, probably to intercept the army of General Sung, which was retreating from Fung-Wang-Cheng. They then turned westward toward Talienwan, advancing five miles daily.

The reputation of the Japanese for humanity and for paying for their supplies is doing them immense services.

Consternation has been caused by the discovery that the Pei-Yang squadron has been caught in a trap at Port Arthur by the Japanese, owing to the neglect or overruling of Li Hung Chang's orders. Li Hung Chang disclaims any responsibility in the matter.

FROZEN TO DEATH.

Bodies of Two Whitman Citizens Found by Searchers In a Swamp.

WHITMAN, Mass., Nov. 8—Two of Whitman's citizens, Bradford S. Bryant and Daniel Powers, were enthusiastic gunners, and on Monday went to the Great Cedar swamp in Abington to spend the day gunning.

They did not return at night, and Tuesday morning, when the big fall of snow was seen, their relatives became anxious. Late in the afternoon the team was found in the Brewster field on the Halifax side of the swamp, the horse half dead from cold and hunger.

About 11 o'clock they came across the body of Powers fully a mile away from where the team was found. An hour later the body of Bryant was found, half a mile from where Powers was lying. Powers leaves a wife and five children and Bryant a father and mother.

WHAT IS THOUGHT OF IT.

Leaders In the Political World Give Their Views of the Landslide.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 8.—In response to a request for an expression of his views regarding the result of the election, ex-President Harrison said: "It is the most extraordinary political revolution the country has ever witnessed. Wherever there was a free ballot, the vote of confidence given in 1892 to the Democratic party, if one was given, has been recalled, and a vote of utter repudiation substituted."

BLOOMINGTON, Ills., Nov. 8.—Hon. Adlai E. Stevenson says: "My opinion can be briefly stated. The result is due in part to the financial depression which came upon the country soon after the inauguration of Mr. Cleveland. While the Democrats were in no way responsible for this, they were made the scapegoats."

NEW YORK, Nov. 8.—Dr. Parkhurst says: "As to the general result I may say frankly it was one which I was not prepared for. I had braced myself up to bear defeat. This victory is due to the fact that the people are beginning to have their eyes opened. Not that they have suddenly become imbued with virtue, because it was not lack of virtue that kept them where they were, but because they have only began to get a glimpse of the real light."

PORTLAND, Me., Nov. 8.—Thomas B. Reed says: "If the overturn proves as complete as it seems to have been, the country and especially the laboring men are to be congratulated." Mr. Reed was silent when congratulated on the prospect that he would be the next speaker of the house, though he seemed to look upon it as a settled thing.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8.—Senator Faulkner, chairman of the Democratic congressional campaign committee, attributes the result of the election to the stay-at-home vote and to the existing hard times.

Comment From Abroad.

Commenting upon the elections held in the United States, The Standard this morning says: Violent oscillations of public opinion do not point to a healthy political atmosphere. We may be sure, however, that there will be no revival of McKinleyism.

The Daily News says: The Democrats came into power on the crest of the wave of a popular dissatisfaction with the higher tariff. The Republicans come into power now on the strength of discontent because of the abuse of Democratic opportunities. The Democrats dallied with their chances.

The Times says: The immense difficulty in the government of America lies here: The country is so vast and its interests are so immensely varied that it seems to pass the wit of man to discover an economic policy that will unite them. Although doubtful, it is not all certain that the defeat of the Democrats will not result in a return to protection.

THE AFTERMATH

Late Returns Make Little Change in Results.

A SOLID REPUBLICAN MAJORITY IS CERTAIN

To Rule in the Next Congressional House.

BOSTON, Nov. 8.—Late returns confirm earlier indications of a sweeping Republican victory throughout the state. Figures give Greenhalge (Rep.), 196,242; Russell (Dem.), 128,495, making Governor Greenhalge's plurality 67,806, as against a plurality in 1893 of 55,597. Twelve out of 13 congressmen are Republicans. In the city of Boston Governor Greenhalge's vote is 30,631, 701 more than he received last year, while Russell, the Democratic candidate, received 25,143, against a vote in 1893 of 30,942.

For the first time in more than 10 years the Republicans whittled the plurality down to 5112, as against a plurality of 9715 last year, and 17,000 for ex-Governor W. E. Russell two years ago. In the western part of the state Worcester increased Greenhalge's plurality to 3225. The Democratic vote fell off everywhere, and the same is true in many parts of the state of the Republican vote, an aspect of the election that was due to the storm.

In the lower branch of the state legislature the Republicans made gains—28 Democrats and 210 Republicans being elected. The legislature will be overwhelmingly Republican.

Republican Plurality Swelled.

CONCORD, N. H., Nov. 8.—In returns from 236 towns and wards in New Hampshire already heard from Busiel (Rep.) has 40,538, Kent (Dem.) 28,129, Knowles (Pro.) 1619, and Epps (Pop.) 594, making Busiel's plurality over Kent 12,404. These same towns in 1892 gave Smith (Rep.) 38,145 and McKinney 35,128. Should the ratios of Republican gain and Democratic loss be the same in the 48 towns not yet heard from, Busiel's final plurality over Kent will be 14,752, the largest plurality ever given a gubernatorial candidate in the history of the Republican party in New Hampshire. In the First congressional district Sulloway (Rep.) has received in the towns heard from 20,757 and Nash (Dem.) 14,613; in the Second congressional district Baker (Rep.) has 19,820 and McDaniel (Dem.) 14,375, indicating a final plurality for each Republican candidate of about 6500.

Democratic Defeat Complete.

PROVIDENCE, Nov. 8.—The Democratic defeat was complete. Every city in the state went Republican. The city of Newport, which a few days ago elected a Democratic mayor, gave Bull, the Republican congressional candidate, over 800 plurality. Bull's plurality in the state will be about 1900. The majority of Arnold (Rep.) in the Second district will be the largest ever given a candidate in the district.

Solidly Republican.

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 8.—Almost complete returns from the state indicate that the Republican state ticket is elected by between 12,000 and 15,700 majority. Republican congressmen are elected from all four districts by majorities of from 1200 to 5500.

IN THE EMPIRE STATE.

DEFEAT OF HILL AND TAMMANY OVERWHELMINGLY COMPLETE.

The Constitutional Amendments Are All Carried—Morton's Plurality is Over 150,000—Notes and Comments on the Republican Sweep.

NEW YORK, Nov. 8.—Returns from all over the state indicate that all of the constitutional amendments have been adopted by large majorities. The amendments were voted for on three ballots. The first was for and against the revised constitution, excepting the reapportionment and canal amendments.

The second was for and against the reapportionment, and the third was the canal amendment. The first ballot included 31 amendments, among them the revision of the judiciary.

The reapportionment amendment forms a state senate of 50 members and assembly of 150.

The blanket amendment revises the judiciary, abolishes the office of coroner, separates municipal and state elections, provides for the sale of the Onondaga salt springs, virtually abolishes the race tracks in this state and permits the use of voting machines.

Returns show an apparent plurality in New York city for consolidation, or the greater New York, of over 30,000, while the rapid transit measure shows an apparent plurality of 32,460.

Although some of the amendments were hotly opposed, there is no probability that any of them have been defeated. They were all carried through on the crest of the tidal wave. A majority of the votes cast for an amendment is sufficient to make it part of the fundamental law of the state.

The result of the returns so far gives Hill a plurality in the city of 2549. The police returns give Hill a plurality of 2807. Outside of this city Morton has received a plurality of 151,218. Goff's plurality is 52,000 and Strong's 42,947.

The overthrow of Tammany in New York city and of the Hill machine in New York state is complete and emphatic. Hill loses heavily in the country districts, but in the metropolis his route is something unprecedented in the political annals of that city.

Normally Democratic by from 40,000 to 80,000 majority, New York city now expresses its opinion of Hill in the astonishing verdict of a bare plurality for the Democratic candidate Kings county, frequently Democratic by from 10,000 to 30,000 majority, which gave Hill for governor in 1892 a majority of 14,000, now crushes him with a heavy hand. Morton carries the state by 150,000, the largest majority by far ever given the Republican ticket in this commonwealth.

No less emphatic is the demoralizing blow given to Tammany Hall. With the whole machinery of government in their hands and commanding a power never attained anywhere else in the country, the organization is put to rout by 40,000 majority, and the choice of a Republican governor and legislature to work in harmony with the new government of New York city gives assurance of such a house-cleaning as will undo the "Tiger" for good and all.

Next Senator Will Be Republican.

WILMINGTON, Del., Nov. 8.—Delaware returns complete give a Republican majority of 1200. The Republicans elect the governor and congressman and local tickets in two counties in the legislature. The senate stands five Democrats and four Republicans; house, 14 Republicans and seven Democrats. On joint ballot there are 18 Republicans and 12 Democrats. This insures a Republican successor to United States Senator Higgins.

Republicans Gained Ground.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 8.—From the latest official returns received from 35 counties in Missouri, Republican gains of 16,000 are shown, and the election of the entire state ticket, by a plurality of at least 10,000, is assured. The lower house of the legislature is Republican, but the Democrats, who have a majority in the senate, will be able to carry things on a joint ballot. At least six Democratic candidates for congress were defeated, and possibly several more will be counted in the Republican column when complete official returns are in.

Wilson Caught In the Wreck.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Nov. 8.—With the legislature having 15 Republican majority on joint ballot, the election of Stephen B. Elkins to succeed J. N. Camden as United States senator is generally conceded. Congressman Wilson went down in the Republican deluge.

The Republican state committee makes the following statement: Doerner (Rep.) First district, 4323 majority; Dayton, Second, 3000 majority over Wilson; Hulling (Rep.), Third, 3500 majority; Miller (Rep.), Fourth, 2000 majority.

Conflicting Claims.

CHATTANOOGA, Nov. 8.—The election of H. Clay Evans (Rep.) over Governor Peter Turney has been conceded by the chairman of the Democratic state committee, and Evans claims to have won by 10,000 plurality. His election is a Waterloo for the Democracy, for the solid south is broken. E. V. Brown is elected to congress.

Fusion Ticket Ahead.

RALEIGH, Nov. 8.—The state judicial ticket is so close that it will require official vote to decide. The legislature is in doubt. The Democrats hope for it, but make no claims. Populist and Republican leaders are confident. Indications are that the fusion ticket has defeated the Democratic congressional candidates in six districts, making the congressional delegation stand three Democrats, two Republicans and four Populists.

Nelson Elected Governor by 20,000.

ST. PAUL, Nov. 8.—There is no doubt of the election of Nelson (Rep.) for governor by at least 20,000 plurality. The returns show a remarkable slump of the vote to Owen, the Populist candidate for governor. Two-thirds of this has come from the Democratic party, and the Democratic candidate for governor has received scarcely 90,000 votes in a total of 265,000. The delegation to congress will be solidly Republican.

Both Sides Claim the Delegate.

OMAHA, Nov. 8.—Only one-third of the state has been heard from. The figures thus far received indicate the election of Holcomb (Pop.-Dem.) for governor by a small plurality. The Republicans have probably elected five of the six congressmen, with the sixth still in doubt.

SALT LAKE CITY, Nov. 8.—Both sides claim the election of delegate to congress. The result is in doubt.

A Democratic Stronghold.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 8.—There seems to be no doubt of the election of a solid Democratic delegation from this state. Probably not over five of the 59 parishes in the state will show a Republican majority. The Republican state committee claims that Kernochan, Coleman and Blattie, Republican candidates for congress, were defeated by intimidation and fraud.

Waite Snowed Under.

DENVER, Nov. 8.—With Republican strongholds yet to be heard from, the majority for McIntyre (Rep.) for governor over Waite (Pop.) is 5000. The returns so far received indicate the election of McIntyre and the entire Republican state ticket by 15,000 or 20,000 plurality. Republicans carried even the Cripple Creek district, which was expected to give a large majority for Waite.

Owens Defeated.

LOUISVILLE, Nov. 8.—Some surprising changes occurred at the elections, among them the defeat of Owens, who defeated Breckinridge in the convention. The election in congressional districts resulted in the choice of six Democrats and four Republicans. The Fourth district is in doubt. The Democrats have probably elected all four judges of the court of appeals.

Republicans May Roll Up 60,000.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 8. — Chairman Gowdy says the state will go Republican by 60,000. He predicts the election of a Republican legislature in both branches. Republicans elect congressmen in the Sixth, Seventh, Tenth and Eleventh and probably in the Fifth and Thirteenth districts, a Republican gain of six.

First Time Since 1880.

DETROIT, Nov. 8.—Secretary Hosford of the Democratic committee concedes the election of the entire Republican congressional delegation, for the first time since 1880. John T. Rich (Rep.), for governor, is elected over Fisher (Dem.) by from 30,000 to 50,000. The election of the whole Republican state ticket is conceded.

Republicans Capture the State.

TOPEKA, Nov. 8.—The returns indicate the election of Morrill for governor and the entire Republican state ticket. The Republicans probably carry all but one congressional district, and the legislature is Republican on joint ballot. Republicans claim the defeat of Congressman Simpson by 2000.

A Complete Turnover.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 8.—More complete returns indicate that the Republican plurality for secretary of state will exceed 150,000. The present Ohio delegation in congress consists of 11 Democrats and 10 Republicans. The newly elected delegation consists of 19 Republicans and two Democrats.

Democrats Take About Everything.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Nov. 8.—The election for nine congressmen passed off very quietly, indeed, exceedingly so for some localities, where fights have been conspicuous heretofore. The Seventh district is doubtful and may go for Howard (Pop.) The others were all carried by Democrats.

Republicans Cut Into Democrats.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 8.—Maryland's solid Democratic front is broken, and the Republicans have made unprecedented gains in every direction. Republicans elect four out of six congressmen. In Baltimore Dobler (Rep.) defeated Kerr (Dem.) for supreme court judge.

A Clean Sweep.

CHICAGO, Nov. 8.—The state of Illinois is Republican by probably 100,000. The legislature, to elect a senator, is Republican. F. E. Downing (Dem.), of the Sixteenth district, is the only Democrat elected to congress from Illinois, all of the other 21 members being Republicans.

Republicans Claim Eight Congressmen.

MILWAUKEE, Nov. 8.—The Republicans of Wisconsin carried the state by over 15,000 plurality for Governor Upham and their state ticket. The Republicans have made gains in almost every voting precinct. The Republicans claim the election of eight and probably nine congressmen.

Assuredly Republican.

SIOUX FALLS, Nov. 8.—Returns indicate that the Republican ticket, including two congressmen-at-large, is elected by no less than 12,000 plurality, and the legislature will be two-thirds Republican. Pierre, the capital, has rolled up the largest Republican majority ever known there.

Usual Democratic Victory Claimed.

GALVESTON, Nov. 8. — The Galveston News claims the usual Democratic majority for state officers and the legislature in Texas, also the election of Democratic congressmen in all the districts, with possible exception of the Ninth and Tenth.

Republican Wave Swept Iowa.

DES MOINES, Nov. 8.—The Republicans appear to have made a clean sweep in Iowa, and nine Republican and one Populist congressmen have been elected. The indications are that the Republicans have carried this state by a plurality of 65,000.

Vote Fell Off.

LITTLE ROCK, Nov. 8.—Returns from principal counties foreshadow the election of a solid Democratic delegation. The Republican vote did not "pan out" as was expected, and the Democratic vote fell off fully as much as was anticipated.

Straight Republican.

BISMARCK, N. D., Nov. 8.—Returns indicate the election to congress of Johnson (Rep.) by 10,000. Also the election of Allin (Rep.) and the entire state ticket by 4000 plurality. The legislature is overwhelmingly Republican.

Republicans Got Everything.

CHEYENNE, Wy., Nov. 8.—Returns so far received indicate the election of the entire Republican state ticket. Mundoll (Rep.) is elected for congress, and the legislature will elect two Republican United States senators.

Mormons Voted For Republicans.

BOISE CITY, Nov. 8.—The entire Republican ticket is elected by 2000 majority or more. The returns indicate that the legislature will be Republican. Mormons' votes have been strongly Republican.

All Republicans.

TRENTON, Nov. 8.—New Jersey sends a solid Republican delegation to congress, and when the legislature meets will name a Republican to succeed John R. McPherson in the senate.

Favorable to Republicans.

SANTA FE, Nov. 8.—Returns indicate the election of T. C. Catron (Rep.) for delegate. The legislature is still in doubt, the chances being favorable for a Republican majority.

The Vote of Montana.

HELENA, Mon., Nov. 8.—Hartman (Rep.) for congress, and Hunt (Rep.) for associate justice, are undoubtedly elected. The legislature will be Republican by 15 on joint ballot.

Budd Is Ahead.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 8.—About one-half the entire vote of the state is counted, and the result indicates that Budd (Dem.) for governor has a plurality of 7000.

CAPTAIN T. G. E. TRENCHARD OF PRINCETON.

The champion Princeton football eleven is playing in excellent form this year and will probably meet Yale on December 1 at New York. Under the captaincy of "Doggie" Trenchard the team defeated Yale last year and Trenchard is again in command this season. He plays at right end and is a capable manager.

CATHOLIC CHURCH BURNED.

NEARBY TOWN SUFFERS HEAVY LOSS BY EARLY MORNING FIRE.

ANDOVER, Nov. 8.—Fire was discovered in St. Augustine's Roman Catholic church in this place at 2 o'clock this morning.

The flames were first seen in the basement and the fire department extinguished the fire there.

Then the flames shot from the roof of the structure and soon enveloped the steeple, and were beyond control.

Help was summoned from Ballardvale and Lawrence, and engines and men from those places arrived within half an hour, but too late to be of much service.

For a time during the progress of the fire the big lumber yard of Hardy & Cook nearby was threatened, and it was to save this place that the help of the neighboring departments was called.

The church was located on Essex street near Andover square, and in a locality covered with buildings of an inflammable nature.

During the past fortnight the church has been undergoing repairs, and only a few days ago the steeple was painted and a new cross put upon it.

The pastor is in New York.

The general belief is that the fire was due to a defective flue, but many believe that it was of incendiary origin.

The loss was about $25,000; the church being totally destroyed.

A BAD MAN

Is Frank Summers If He Has Been Doing Acts With Which He is Charged.

The capture made by Capt. Moffatt and Officer Ed. Fox, night before last, of Frank Summers, who lives in Carlisle, proved a good one.

He was charged with entering the house of F. H. Coburn on Stevens street. It is also alleged that he broke into the barn of Mr. Plummer in East Chelmsford Oct. 25, and stole a harness; also with entering Dutton's barn in Chelmsford and stealing 10 chickens, which he took to Carlisle and had dressed for market. Not satisfied with this, a sudden streak of humanity struck him and he stole two hives of bees from the premises of Mr. Mansfield, smothering the bees with sulphur. He thought it a pity for the bees to be exposed to the cold snap.

All but one of the chickens were found, and Summer admitted that one of them was cooked and eaten. One of the harnesses has been found, and Ayer Junction officers are engaged in looking up other depredations committed by Summers.

THE CITIZENS PARTY.

FITCHBURG, Nov. 8.—The citizens' party is itself again. It has been revived in the hopes of defeating the A. P. A. Caucuses were held last night, and each one was well attended, an average of 50 voters congregating in each place.

It is generally understood that the A. P. A. is to make an effort to get possession of the municipal office, and the purpose of awakening the citizens' party is to gain the allegiance of all republican voters outside of the A. P. A. and in favor of granting licenses. It is also hoped that the democratic and republican parties, as organizations, will ally themselves with the citizens' party in the movement to down the A. P. A. Judging from the complexion of last night's caucuses, some success will attend their plans, as democrats and republicans turned out in about equal numbers.

A Resolution Was Proposed.

At a meeting of the republican city committee, last evening, after the regular business was finished, Jerome Manning, Esq., alluded to the treatment of Rev. Mr. Montgomery at the Monday evening rally, and offered the following resolution:

Resolved, that this committee hereby officially disclaims any and all responsibility for the uncivil treatment of Rev. Hugh Montgomery on the evening of Monday, Nov. 5, 1894, at Huntington hall and regrets sincerely that any intended or other discourtesy was offered him; and so earnestly disapproves of the same.

After some debate on the motion for its adoption the resolution was laid upon the table by a vote of 16 to 13. The meeting adjourned to the 14th inst., when the matter will undoubtedly come up again for action.

AFTER THE FIGHT

That Led to the Great Political Sweep.

The Republicans Planning for a Victory.

From state and national politics the attention of politicians turns to the municipal campaign. As in the greater campaign both parties are confident of victory.

Changes come suddenly now. We may go to sleep at night the staunchest democrats and wake up in the morning to find we are republicans. That has been our experience on Nov. 6.

Lowell was considered democratic by a large majority, so was Lawrence. The check list proved this and Marcellus Fletcher would swear to it on a stack of bibles but of what use are the democrats who do not vote the democratic ticket.

The political cyclone, earthquake or whatever it may be termed that swept the country on last Tuesday does not indicate a permanent change in political complexion. It was a change produced by a combination of causes such as may never again exist.

These causes had reference to state and national affairs rather than to municipal matters.

If the checklist shows a democratic majority, it differs in that respect from the election returns for the city.

The question now to be considered is whether the democrats of the city will be democrats at the city election or whether they will vote the republican ticket in that contest also.

It therefore behooves the democracy to select their best men to represent them in every office.

Otherwise defeat may come as in the state and national elections.

The temper of a large number of voters is very uncertain and cannot be trusted very far.

It will be useless this year for any man to force himself upon the voters. They will not have it. They would take delight in nailing such a man. They are all out of sorts as it were, they feel sore after eighteen months of hard times and they are looking for revenge.

If they suspect any man as a mere office seeker for the sake of holding office they will slaughter him.

But if they get every opportunity to make their own selections fairly, openly, squarely, they will stand by the nominees.

This is a peculiar situation. The voters are watching the course of events this year as never before and yet they are not swayed by reason. They vote from impulse and feel satisfied at having overturned the existing order of things, whether for better or worse.

Will it be so in the city election? That will depend upon the wisdom of the political managers directing affairs and upon the candidates nominated.

Already the republicans have begun to plan for victory in December.

Never, perhaps, was there so much at stake in a city election.

Not only is the election of mayor and city council at stake, but the heads of several departments will come up for reelection. The chief of police will end the unexpired term this year, the chief of the fire department will also close his term while as usual there will be a contest over the choice of superintendent of streets and other officers.

Besides the city is to be redistricted next year and if the republicans have the doing of this they can gerrymander the wards so as to give themselves an advantage for years to come.

It is quite likely that the defeat sustained will cause the democrats to get together and work harmoniously for victory.

The A. P. A. element will make itself felt of course against the democracy and the French vote will go mainly to the republican party.

All these things can be overcome, however, by united action if the strongest men the party can command be nominated.

It is expected that the Ward Two caucuses will be largest and liveliest ever held in the ward and there will be fully a dozen candidates for the council. It is the impression in the ward that the delegation to the municipal convention will either be for Freeman B. Puffer or George H. Marston.

Patrick H. Barry of Ward One who has served in the council is a candidate this year. He has strong backing.

The republicans are already planning to carry Ward Five and to elect a republican in Ward Three. They will also endeavor to elect four councilmen in Ward Two which has a democrat this year. That would give the republicans thirteen councilmen. They hope to elect six aldermen and if they succeed in both cases they will have things much their own way for the next few years. If the so called democrats that voted the republican ticket on Tuesday want this they can have it in addition to the state and national victories for republicans.

AUNT DINAH'S PARTY.

Full Moon Shone Outside and the People Gathered in First Church Vestry.

A very pleasant entertainment was the "Aunt Dinah's husking party," held in the Eliot church last evening. The stage scene was a natural reproduction of an old fashioned husking.

The stage was set to represent the interior of a barn, and pumpkins, squashes, hencoops, and grindstones were strewn about, together with a pile of unhusked corn.

All the soloists were attired in "country fashion." The fair opened with a comic dialogue between Robert Leatham and F. W. Lee. Then following the husking scene with a chorus of 18 voices, and solos by Mr. and Mrs. Burns, Mrs. Sherburne, G. F. Sturtevant, Mrs. Dr. Landers, Robt. Leatham, F. W. Lee, Edith Childs and Ruth Pease. After the entertainment refreshments were served.

HIS BRITISH BLOOD

Was Loyal to Gov. Greenhalge's Ancestry, But Under the Wrong Circumstances.

William H. Siddon is an Englishman, (perhaps an A. P. A.,) and when at the Opera house he found that he had paid to see an "Irish" show he was mad, and went out between the acts to drown his anger.

During the play he disturbed every one by waving his hat in the air and yelling, "Hurrah for Greenhalge," "Greenhalge is an Englishman," etc. Officer Tilton gave Siddon all the chance in the world to keep quiet, but he persisted in yelling for Greenhalge and was arrested. In court he pleaded not guilty of drunkenness and said "H'its wat I 'ad during the hintervals wat turned me h'over." The court decided that Siddon's demonstration was $12 to the county, and the blooming lad was fined that "hamount." In future Willie will behave himself when among respectable people.

This Morning's Fire.

The alarm from box 165 at 10.20 today, was for a fire in a house out on Columbus road. The house is a two and one-half story one and is occupied by two families. The fire started in a room on the first floor and worked up through the partition to the roof, which was badly burned. The chemical and patrol answered to the alarm. What damage there was, was due principally to smoke.

Not Much Money Bet.

A well known local sporting man makes the assertion that not over $500 were bet on the outcome of the election, and while many fellows said they were looking for bets few were in earnest.

MEN MAY DIE

Men Caught in Belts and Pulleys and Mangled.

A very serious runaway accident occurred at the corner of Merrimack and Palmer streets yesterday. About 5 o'clock in the afternoon as Dr. McAvinnue was walking along Merrimack street at the Palmer street crossing, he was stopped by John Houston of Charles street who asked him to buy a ticket. While they were talking on the crossing, a horse attached to a democrat wagon belonging, it is said, to Councilman Barclay, which was running away down Merrimack, turned into Palmer street striking the two men. Dr. McAvinnue was thrown to the curbing but fortunately was not injured badly, while Houston struck the iron hydrant sustaining a very bad fracture of the skull. He was removed to Dr. Meigs' office where it was found he was in a dangerous condition and he was removed to the General hospital.

The ambulance was on the run this morning attending accident calls and at 11 o'clock had responded to four calls, one a fatality, two probably fatal and the fourth a serious accident.

The first occurred at 8.30 o'clock when Roger Kane, an employe of the Massachusetts mills fell down an elevator well, four stories, breaking his nose and thumb and sustaining internal injuries. He was removed to the corporation hospital.

At 9 o'clock a call from Kendall's mill came in and John Callahan, Sr., a well known operative of this mill, who is familiarly called "Jack," was the victim in this case. A cylinder head burst and Callahan who was near by, was thrown quite a distance striking with great force and sustaining a fractured skull. He was removed to St. John's hospital. He is in a bad condition and it is thought he cannot recover.

The explosion occurred in the ell of the mill where Callahan and his assistant John Daly were at work. The steam box was quite large and it is thought Mr. Callahan was struck by one of the iron bars which fasten the door of the box. The glass in every window in the room was blown out, boxes were blown down and big bolts cut. Daly was struck with a flying missle and was only slightly hurt.

Mr. Callahan is a well known and popular man, is a member of the Reform club and Post 42 G. A. R. He is a very careful workman and the cause of the accident is a mystery. Seven pounds of steam is the limit of the chest before it blows off but it is supposed there was much more than that amount in it at the time of the explosion. An operation was performed on Mr. Callahan, a piece of skull three inches square being removed. On account of his age his recovery is doubtful.

A Portugese named Vichiracka, residing at 12 Chelmsford street, was the victim of a fatal accident at White's tannery at 10 o'clock. Vichiracka saw a man inside of a big cylinder, repairing it, and through curiosity looked over the top to watch him. The cylinder suddenly moved and caught his head fracturing the skull. The ambulance took him to St. John's hospital where he died in a short time.

The fourth accident occurred at the Bleachery where William F. Dollard, an employe, was caught in some belting and cut an artery in his arm. He was taken to St. John's and afterwards was taken to his home on Ryan street.

An examination of Kane's injuries was made at the corporation hospital and it was found that his skull is fractured, check bone crushed, one rib and his thumb broken. His recovery is very doubtful.

A Sad Case.

Mr. Kane who will not recover from his injuries according to the present indications has been in the country 26 years and has worked every working day since he came here. He has a wife and a large family.

NEW ENGLAND VETS.

The quarterly meeting of the New England States Veteran Firemen's league was held in Veteran Firemen's hall, yesterday afternoon. President William T. Cheswell presiding.

The committee appointed to consider the advisibility of incorporating the league, reported adversely and the report was accepted and adopted.

It was voted to eliminate the benefit association from the league, and a new set of rules for the governing of the benefit branch was adopted, and notice given of proposed amendments to the constitution, to make it comply with the new conditions to be acted upon at the annual meeting, when the new rules of the benefit branch will go into effect.

A protest entered at the Pawtucket muster against upper brakes upon side stroke engines was referred to the league by the board of judges and provoked a heated discussion, and it was finally voted that the whole matter lay over till the annual meeting, in order to have a full vote of the delegates upon the question.

Charles A. Philbrick of Lowell, P. J. Donovan of Charlestown and Thomas P. Barley of Boston, were appointed a committee to audit the accounts of the treasurer.

P. J. Donovan of Charlestown, Thomas G. Gerrish of Lowell, Samuel L. Carpenter of Providence, W. T. King of Cambridge and John Exley of Newton were appointed a committee to nominate officers for the ensuing year.

It was voted that the annual meeting be called at 10 a. m. and President W. T. Cheswell of Boston, Secretary W. H. Hathaway of Hyde Park and Bernard McNellis of Charlestown, were appointed a committee to make all the arrangements for the annual dinner.

RELIGIOUS MEETINGS.

One Held in Lowell and the Other in Lawrence.

At its conclusion dinner was served in the vestry under the direction of the ladies of the church. The afternoon services were opened with devotional services, conducted by Rev. F. A. Fray of Nashua.

The address was by Dr. W. E. Gibbs of Lawrence on "Unrest," and he was followed by Dr. J. C. Snow of Boston, who spoke interestingly on "The call of today." With appropriate closing exercises the conference came to a close.

HONORED A MEMBER.

Representative-Elect O'Connor must have felt flattered at the warm reception tendered him by the Alpine club last evening. The young representative is a member of this popular organization, and the affair last evening was to celebrate his election to the legislature.

Twice have the Alpines found occasion to honor Mr. O'Connor, the previous time being when he was chosen to the council two years ago. The quarters of the club in the Howe block were crowded with members and their friends.

James H. Morris, president of the club, called to order, and welcomed the guests. He alluded to Mr. O'Connor's success in political life and his popularity with the voters of the district. He and the members of the club took pride in Mr. O'Connor's election and had only heartiest congratulations to offer the representative-elect.

Mr. O'Connor rose to respond and was greeted with applause. He recognized the efforts of the club members in his behalf and to them he extended his heartfelt thanks. He was glad to be numbered among the members of the Alpine club, between whom the closest relations exist.

Rep. Farley, who was present, was called upon and referred to the success attained by Mr. O'Connor during his brief career. He felt certain that the success attained as a member of the local government would be repeated in the state legislature.

Anthony A. Conway spoke in glowing terms of Mr. O'Connor and praised his political career. It pleased him to see the club honoring one of its members, who is a credit to the organization and to his own efforts.

There were vocal selections by T. F. Molloy, Frank Fagan, James Donnelly and John Murray.

Mr. Andrew Smith favored the company with several excellently rendered recitations which were thoroughly appreciated. Thomas H. Muldoon and several members of the Sawtelle dramatic company added to the evening's entertainment.

The whole affair was well planned and carried out.

It added to the reputation already secured by this organization for entertaining and displayed more than ever before the bond of friendship that holds its members together.

It was a great night for Rep.-elect O'Connor, the Alpine club and its friends.

TAMMANY HURT

New York Is Surprised at the Great Blow.

CLEAN SWEEP OF THE OPPOSITION EVERYWHERE.

By Associated Press to THE SUN.

It's John W. Goff for recorder, too!

The former defeats Hill by fully 150,000, and the latter leads Grant, the Tammany candidate for mayor of New York, by over 50,000.

Goff defeats Smyth for the recordership by a majority which may reach 50,000.

Even Dr. Parkhurst is staggered and the poor old Tammany tiger is so far buried in the public estimation that it is doubtful if even a cage in Central Park or a niche in the Museum will be granted to the democratic pet which has so long preyed upon the city and state of New York.

Dr. Parkhurst in a letter to the press last night, said:

"This victory is so overwhelming as to be staggering. It will take a day or two to recover our equanimity. The result is itself more thrillingly eloquent than anything which can be said about it. It is full of demonstration and suggestion that points a hundred different ways.

"It proves that municipal government need not be a failure in our country, and that it is not going to be a failure.

"The eyes of all classes are opening. In going around among the downtown polling places today the general declaration was: 'We are hoping for better things.'

"The town at large is tired of Tammany. We shall be amazed and indignant inside of a week that we have tolerated the system so long."

A REVIEW OF THE SITUATION.

There is a saying somewhere in the scriptures that "a house divided against itself will fail."

This maxim has an apt application to the fate of the democratic party in its present defeat in city, state and nation.

First of all the dissensions that rent the party in congress, the deadlock between the house and the senate, and the prolonged tariff contention were by themselves utterly disgusting to the country but combined with the hard times, the want of employment and consequent suffering on all sides, they cast the party into disfavor everywhere and on Tuesday that disfavor was given effect at the polls.

There were the silver men on one side, the sound money men on the other, the southern democrats and the northern democrats, the Hill faction and the Cleveland faction, each at variance with the others and with the whole. With so many factions pulling against one another and against the administration as a whole: with President Cleveland's readiness to write denunciatory letters, the wonder is that even so much was effected during the past two years.

The democratic party has changed the tariff law and changed it for the better. Not even the greatest enthusiasts on the high protective policy can offer any argument to the contrary. But the country was not convinced of this fact. The people had passed through eighteen months of hard times. They had been told that the elevation of the democratic party to power would bring good times; but a variety of circumstances made a prompt change in the tariff impossible.

Delays followed, the people became impatient and many of the unreasoning class resolved to oust the democrats at the first opportunity. They did so and hence the democratic slump all over the country.

Republicans will probably say that this was righteous treatment of the democratic party; but it was not. That party was unjustly charged with responsibility for the panic of republican creation and when by wise legislation it restored prosperity it was practically turned out of office. That is the manner in which the inscrutable will of the people sometimes asserts itself with an apparent disregard for justice; but, nevertheless, the voice of the people must be obeyed.

To the causes which operated generally against the democracy throughout the nation, were superadded in New York state, the opposition to Tammany, the popular movement against corruption as represented by the Lexow committee, and the division between the followers of Hill and those of Cleveland together with the independents. All these combined were sufficient to give the republicans a victory in the city as well as in the state, and Senator Hill, Tammany and all they represent, went down in the general defeat.

The action of President Cleveland in failing to vote is severely criticised. Perhaps it would have been undignified for him to have written a letter or to have said a word in behalf of party interests in New York, but it would not have been any more so than his letter to Congressman Wilson.

That letter was used for campaign material by the republican press all over the country and there came not a word from the president to offset the effect of it.

In this state there was no hope at any time of defeating Gov. Greenhalge. He has made an excellent governor, and the fact that the A.P.A. was reported to be opposed to him brought him many democratic votes.

At the last hour this proscriptive order decided to support the governor and cut Lieut.-Gov. Wolcott, which they did to the extent of their power.

The contest between McEttrick and McNary, and that between Coakley and Cronan, lost a congressman and a state senator to the party, while the defeat of Senator Brady in this city can be attributed in some measure to the same cause—disunion and party treachery.

Thus the disaster that has come to the democratic party is traceable to well defined and unmistakable causes. A study of the figures and their reference to pre-existing conditions may teach democratic leaders to be more discreet in the future. It will show that union, harmony and combined effort are necessary to victory, necessary not only on election day but continuously as a matter of party policy. It will show also that the independent candidate is a dangerous tool in the hands of the enemy and should be met with stern opposition whenever he appeals to democrats for support.

The effect of this sweeping republican victory will be to stop the work of tariff reform, to give republicans control of the national house and perhaps of the senate also. President Cleveland's veto may be the only power that will stand between the country and a reversal of the tariff policy recently put into effect. Prosperity has just started in under the new tariff law and if it continues the republicans will claim that it came as a result of their victory as a sort of industrial complement to their great triumph, and that its permanency depends upon whether they will hold the reins of government.

I'LL JOIN THE LEAGUE.

"What! Double taxation here in Massachusetts! Impossible! Give me one instance of it and I'll join the League!" So ought every fair-minded man to say or leave the state, if Massachusetts is to retain its claim to fairness and good sense. So here goes for an illustration, and if it is not convincing to the meanest understanding, let us hear from you!

There are two taxes paid, as there ought to be, one on each property in each state where the property is protected and owes its contribution towards the government it lives under.

I swap with Brown, my stock for his. Now there are four taxes due, one still on each mill and two new taxes on the two lots of stock, although there is no more property than before. How is this? When I was a boy and went to school I was taught two and two made four; now I am a man and pay taxes—a great part of which go for education—I am told by the law that one and one make four.

Is the law absurd or unjust, or was I mistaught when a boy, and am I now cheated when I pay taxes for such a burlesque on education?

Now let Massachusetts race with Maine to see which first will right this wrong, and let every honest and intelligent man join the League with this end in view.

Another illustration. Smith of Chicago has grown up with the city, and now has $1,000,000 worth of property there, stores, elevators, factories and other properties situated in Illinois, and, as is entirely proper, taxed there. All this property is represented by shares in the corporations, even his real estate being incorporated for convenience sake.

He returns to Massachusetts, which he left 40 years ago, with no capital but a common school education and an honest and vigorous character, and wishes to replant his family here and end his days in a community claiming to be equalled by few and excelled by none. What happens? The assessor goes for him armed by our tax law, with the power to collect from him another, this time a Massachusetts tax, on this million of property, already once fully taxed elsewhere. Has another million of property been created by this man's removal from Chicago to Boston? Can property be doubled by the mere fact of the owner traveling a few miles from one state to another? If a millionaire with all his property in Rhode Island steps over the boundary into Massachusetts, does he thereby create another million on which it is proper for Massachusetts to tax him a second time?

No, he does not; it is not proper; it is not just, it is a burlesque on propriety and justice and good sense, but it is the law—our law—Massachusetts law, and unless you join the League you are a partner in the impropriety, the injustice and the folly! And how fortunate it is that property cannot be created with this ease, by merely moving from one state to another, as our law proposes; just think of the excitement and restlessness that would ensue!

Every man would buy a mileage ticket and tear around the country from state to state, doubling his wealth as many times a day as he struck a new state; or if he were young and active he could jump forward and back again over the boundary line between Massachusetts and Rhode Island until he was rich enough to pay double taxation without a murmur!

You may say this is treating a serious subject with levity; but it is inevitable. Our tax law, now upheld only by the ignorant, who are the enemy of prosperity in any state, is loaded to the muzzle with levity, and when you strip your mind of prejudice and misinformation, and your heart of cupidity, and deal with the subject bared down to the naked facts, you cannot help striking the grotesque and the ridiculous. Life would be altogether too terrible and sad if the spectacle of folly only made us furious; rather let us laugh when we see what fools we have allowed ourselves to be; but then set to work with grim earnestness to establish a better record for ourselves on the score of good sense and justice.

Amusing Fiction.

"Have you read any fiction lately?"

The Reason Why.

Why are the cares of life so few?
What makes the sky so clear a blue?
What magic gilds the avenue?
I mutely question.
And why are all things changed to me?
I'm not bequeathed a legacy,
Nor is it just a case per se
Of sound digestion.

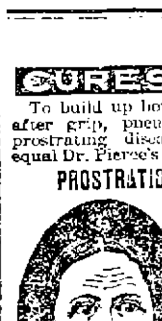

This is the cause of my content:
Last evening to her house I went.
She's been away on pleasure bent
Three months and over.
And now she's home again and bland,
She's given me to understand—

—Life.

CURES OTHERS

To build up both solid flesh and strength after grip, pneumonia, fevers and other prostrating diseases, there is nothing to equal Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

PROSTRATION FOLLOWING GRIP.

MRS. GARRETT.

MRS. REUBEN GARRETT, King George C. H., Va., writes: "I was taken with grip which finally resulted in pneumonia. Was prostrated for three months. Had a terrible cough and was emaciated and very weak. Was fast drifting into 'quick consumption.' The doctor gave me medicines at the time. I grew weaker. He advised cod liver oil emulsion. I took two bottles of it without any relief. I had pain in my left shoulder and back. I wrote you, and you prescribed your 'Golden Medical Discovery.' I took only one bottle before I felt better. After two bottles I could sit up, and felt I had been saved from the grave. I increased rapidly in flesh and strength."

WHY NOT YOU?

SUNBEAMS.

The Boy and His Natural Enemy.

"You think I don't know nothin about you, don't you?" remarked the street boy to the policeman.

"You know enough about me to keep out of my reach," smiled the officer good naturedly.

"Anybody knows that," retorted the boy in a tone of scorn. "I know more'n that."

"What do you know?" and the officer manifested some interest.

"I know where you get things," said the boy mysteriously.

"What things?" and the officer became more interested.

"Oh, lots of things," and this time the boy winked slyly.

"I know where you got them shoes, for instance."

"Where?" he asked with some curiosity.

"You got 'em on yer feet," and the boy made haste to get beyond their reach.—Detroit Free Press.

His Inquiry Was Premature.

The Husband—Are you going out to vote today, dear?

The Wife—Yes, darling.

The Husband—For whom are you going to vote?

A Give Away All Around.

"I think," she said as she came into the room, "that I will give that poll parrot away."

"Yes," replied the young man who was calling. "It would be only fair. She has been doing as much for you."—Detroit Free Press.

Two Rats.

A London journal relates a rat story that is worth repeating. It says a gentleman, on coming home from India on a sailing ship, while in the tropics was one day bathing his hands and arms in a basin full of cool water placed on top of a sea chest. Suddenly a large rat jumped on the chest beside him and looked up in his face; then, placing its forefeet on the edge of the basin, drank long and deep. Although usually "rough on rats," the writer says "he had not the heart to hurt that one, for—to make use of a nautical term—'his coppers were hot.'" An acquaintance of mine, a truthful man, told me in Melbourne some years ago that one evening, while sitting on his veranda, with his old tom cat (nearly blind) close beside him, a large rat came from under the veranda, and going straight up to the cat, first with one paw and then the other, soundly smacked his face, then slowly retired once more beneath the veranda."—Boston Herald.

A Walking Fern.

There is a fern which by its peculiarities of growth may almost justly lay claim to the popular name of the "walking fern." The fronds arch over, and the fine slender points coming in contact with the soil take root. New growth again proceeds from the latter, which in its turn roots also, so that the locale of the plant is continually moving forward and suggesting the idea of walking. This peculiar fern is quite hardy and succeeds well in a compost of peat, leaf mold and sand in a shady position which is moist in summer and fairly dry in winter. The fronds are heart shaped, bright green in color, 6 inches to 12 inches long.—Montreal Star.

Philadelphia.

"It may almost be claimed," says Professor Warren P. Laird of the University of Pennsylvania, "that Philadelphia is at once the most curious, the most typical and the most instructive of American cities—curious because of the strange medley of its more pretentious buildings, and their singularly eccentric individualism, typical of American practice in its broadest aspect, because of the absence of restraint and defiance of precedent shown by the great majority of its architects, and instructive because of its contrast, for no other American city has so wide a field of architectural error to offer in contrast to its works of real merit."

ALL IS VANITY

Mrs. Vanderbilt Will Receive Three Million Dollars.

NEW YORK, Nov. 8.—Within the past fortnight the final financial arrangements are said to have been made between Mr. and Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, and suit for divorce will be begun under the laws of Rhode Island.

Colonel William Jay has been acting as the representative of Mrs. Vanderbilt since the quarrel was made public. He went abroad last spring, and it is assumed that he has accomplished all that is possible for his client.

W. K. VANDERBILT.

Colonel Jay arrived in this city last week, and Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt came from Newport to meet him. In a brief interview the terms agreed to by Mr. Vanderbilt were made known, and Colonel Jay returned to Newport with Mrs. Vanderbilt.

The sum offered by Mr. Vanderbilt was computed after long and careful consideration by the family lawyer. It is understood to be $3,000,000. As a wife of a multi-millionaire, Mrs. Vanderbilt has naturally a right to a very large sum as dower.

She is not, however, considered to be the injured party in the case, and her husband's generosity to her and her relatives has been in the past unstinted. It is therefore held that she

in receiving an amount of money somewhat larger than the law would possibly require. She will take the sum mentioned in place of alimony and of her right of dower.

It is now a month since Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt returned from Europe and went to Marble House, Newport. The divorce laws of Rhode Island are not difficult. Mrs. Vanderbilt has lived there for the necessary time to enable her to bring suit, as Marble House is really her home.

Her sister, Miss Armide Smith, who resided here in a house not far from the Vanderbilt residence, joined Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt in Paris and came over with her on the Lucania. Miss Smith has since been Mrs. Vanderbilt's guest at Marble House.

W. K. Vanderbilt's relatives are thoroughly in accord with him, and they have shown no sympathetic interest in Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt since her return.

Since her arrival in Newport, Mrs. Vanderbilt has secluded herself. She drives out daily for a couple of hours, and is invariably alone in her phaeton. She drives two spirited black horses, which are the highest steppers on the ocean drive.

While Mrs. Vanderbilt will have the legal custody of her children, it is believed that the two eldest, who are almost grown up, will be allowed to make their choice and live with their father or his family if they wish to.

after the the divorce is decreed is the phase of the case which is now exciting gossip. He is good-looking, amiable and fond of society. There is even a rumor already of the engagement of Mr. Vanderbilt to the widowed Duchess of Manchester, who is a very handsome woman.

Mrs. Vanderbilt's sister, Miss Jennie Smith, married Fernando Yznaga. She arranged an amicable divorce with him and married Mr. Tiffany. Mr. Yznaga then married Miss Mabel Wright.

Another sister, Miss Minnie Smith, married a French nobleman named De Fonbilliot, from whom she is now separated. De Fonbilliot made a brave attempt to live at Mr. Vanderbilt's expense, but is now said to be working

The remaining sister is the only one who has had no matrimonial unpleasantness. She is unmarried and the devoted friend of Mrs. Vanderbilt.

Did the Jury Err?

HAVERHILL, Mass., Nov. 8.—B. F. Brickett, one of the counsel for the defendants in the liquor cases recently tried at Lawrence, where the aldermen were convicted, claims to have discovered a serious flaw in the verdict of the jury on bringing defendants guilty on the second count, and not the first and third counts.

Death Resulted From Fractured Skull.

BOSTON, Nov. 8.—A. P. Hilton, an electric patrolman employed by the Boston Electric Light company, fell from a pole last night. His skull was fractured, and death ensued a few minutes afterward. While trimming the light, he received a shock which caused him to release his hold.

Killed His Wife.

TIVOLI, N. Y., Nov. 8.—Charles Baker quarrelled with his wife while intoxicated, and in his frenzy beat and kicked her most brutally. The woman ran shrieking from the house. Baker followed her into the yard and shot her dead. He then disappeared in the woods.

Strassburg Will Honor Him.

BERLIN, Nov. 8.—Chancellor von Hohenlohe started for Strassburg last night to wind up his affairs there. Strassburg is preparing for a great popular demonstration when he leaves on his return.

Out of the Way.

BERLIN, Nov. 8.—Schame, the anarchist who recently shot a policeman who had arrested him, was yesterday sentenced to 12 years' imprisonment at hard labor, and 10 years' loss of civil rights. Draeger, his accomplice, was sentenced to five years' imprisonment.

RIOTERS SENTENCED.

PLYMOUTH, Mass., Nov. 8.—There was great interest in the superior court proceedings here yesterday when the cases of the Old Colony officials, who were charged with being rioters, came up for sentence. The cases, five in number, have been pending since August, 1893, when the Rockland and Abington Street railway attempted to lay its tracks across the Old Colony rails in the center of the town of Abington. This attempt was opposed by the Old Colony, and a serious riot resulted, in which several people were badly injured.

Among those who figured prominently in the trouble were John C. Sanborn, superintendent of the Plymouth division; Christopher S. Bailey, railroad police officer; Angus L. Fraser, foreman of the corporation blacksmith shop; Emery H. Bryant, roadmaster of the Middleboro division, and John Bolen, a section foreman, all of whom were arrested. After a postponement from last February to this session of the court, the defendants were brought in for sentence yesterday.

Judge Sherman sentenced Sanborn and Bailey to four months in the house of correction, and Angus Fraser and John Bolen to two months each in the same institution. The specific charge upon which the men were indicted was that of inciting a riot, and the maximum penalty is imprisonment not exceeding three years, or a minimum fine of 1 cent without costs. The sentences surprised the citizens. A request for time to settle up their personal affairs before imprisonment was denied by the judge and the men yesterday afternoon went to the house of correction.

SALISBURY'S TRIBUTE

To Czar Alexander's Christianity Was Due the Peace of Europe.

LONDON, Nov. 8.—Ex-Prime Minister Salisbury, in a speech last night on London municipal politics, took occasion to refer to the death of Czar Alexander and expressed on behalf of the Conservative party deep grief because of the death of the ruler. At the beginning of the czar's reign, he said, he had some doubt as to his majesty's attitude, but long before he (Salisbury) left the foreign office he was convinced that Europe owed a debt of gratitude to the czar for the peace the restraint of his high Christian character secured on more than one occasion. A man with lower motive than he might have yielded to temporary irritation—in an autocrat a terrible thing. He left behind him a character that future rulers would do well to study and follow.

Railroad Men Killed.

PITTSBURG, Nov. 8.—A train on the Baltimore and Ohio, coming west, ran into the first section of a fast cattle train, two miles east of Rockwood, last evening. Six railroad men were killed and several others wounded. The railroad officials say no passengers were hurt.

Concerning the Grand Trunk.

LONDON, Nov. 8.—In its financial article The Standard says that the directors of the Grand Trunk railway have definitely refused to permit an investigation of the books and accounts of the company in Canada, as they agreed to do at the recent meeting in London.

Fishermen Rescued.

CAPE MAY, Nov. 8.—Eight Anglesea fishermen, who were reported missing, were rescued by passing vessels. No one was lost. The fishermen were very much exhausted when they were picked up.

Female Strikers Fined.

NEW YORK, Nov. 8.—Seven striking cloakmakers, all women, were fined $3 each yesterday, charged with disorderly conduct, in interfering with cloakmakers on their way to work.

Pierola on the Aggressive.

BUENOS AYRES, Nov. 8.—General Pierola, who is leading the movement against the Peruvian government, is said to be making preparations to attack Lima.

Schooner Wrecked.

VINEYARD HAVEN, Mass., Nov. 8.—Schooner S. S. Brown of Northport went ashore at Chilmark, and is a total loss. The crew were saved.

Kelly Is Better.

BOSTON, Nov. 8.—Kelly, the baseball player, who has been sick with pneumonia during the past few days, is reported better.

HOW TO PRESERVE SKETCHES.

Pencil drawings may be rendered ineffaceable by a very simple process. Slightly warm a sheet of ordinary drawing paper; then place it carefully on the surface of a solution of white rosin in alcohol, leaving it there long enough to become thoroughly moistened. Afterward dry in a current of warm air. Paper prepared in this way has a very smooth surface. In order to fix the drawing, the paper is to be slightly warm for a few moments. This process may prove useful for the preservation of plans or designs when want of time or any other cause will not allow of draftsmen reproducing them in ink. A simpler plan than this is to brush over the back of the paper containing the pencil sketch with a weak solution of shellac in alcohol. Chalk and pencil drawings may be fixed, though not so thoroughly as by the above methods, by washing them with skimmilk or with water holding in solution a little isinglass or gum. When milk is used, great care must be taken that no cream remains in it, as it would cause the drawing to look streaky. An easy way to apply these fluids is to pour them into a shallow vessel and lay the drawing flat upon the surface of the liquid, after which remove gently and lay it in an inclined position on white blotting paper to drain and dry.

Pour half a pint of boiling milk, sweetened, into a basin containing two well whisked eggs. Stir the ingredients, put them into a clean saucepan and stir steadily over the fire until a thick custard is produced, taking care it does not boil, or it will be spoiled. Remove from the fire and put aside until cold; then add half a pint of whipped cream to the custard and either a little liquor or a teaspoonful of vanilla essence. Ascertain that the mixture is sweet enough and add some dried cherries and pineapple cut into small pieces and a few drops of carmine, just sufficient to give a pale pink tint.

Put the mixture into a pudding mold with a cover, or an ordinary round cocoa tin that will hold a pint will do quite as well, provided it has a well fitting cover. Stand the tin in a zinc pail, and pack it around tightly with equal quantities of rough ice, broken up into fairly small pieces, and freezing salt. About 3 pounds of each will be required. Then cover the pail entirely with a thick blanket and stand it in a warm corner of the kitchen, near the fire, but not too close, for 3½ hours. Then turn the pudding out of the tin, knocking it on the table if necessary to loosen it, and serve at once.

How to Clean Chamois Gloves.

The best way for cleaning chamois gloves is to put them on the hands and wash them in lukewarm water with white soap. Rinse them in clean lukewarm water and squeeze them as dry as possible. Then dry thoroughly while still on the hands with a clean towel, peel them off the hands and hang in an open window, first carefully pulling them into shape.

How Artists' Models Are Paid.

The regular rate in the art schools is 33⅓ cents an hour, or $10 a week for six days' work of four hours each. If no complaints are made by the art student or class monitor, the model gets a 25 per cent premium. "Good days" are few and far apart, for the poses are 25 minutes long, with only five minutes' rest, and in difficult positions more than human nature can endure. To get off the pose an instant or to keep it in a lazy manner provokes complaint, and although the croaker may be the veriest bungler it counts against the poor model, who may be trying to earn an honest livelihood.

How to Choose Good Lip Salves.

Bad digestion will often assert itself in broken or chapped lips, sores in the corners of the mouth, fever blisters and a coated tongue. Chronic sore mouths should be rubbed with sweet oil or pure glycerin at night. In the morning wash with a solution of alum or borax, a teaspoonful in a tumbler of water. Camphor ice is both healing and cleansing. Good cold cream is not a bad salve. All the druggists have supplies and cheerfully dispense 5 cent quantities. Citron ointment is one of the old reliable lip salves kept by all chemists. It is applied to the sore with a soft linen cloth. When the mouth is sore, the diet should be changed to vegetable foods.

How to Boil Halibut.

Tie it nicely in a linen cloth, put it in a kettle of cold water, enough to cover it, and add a tablespoonful of vinegar and a little salt, and after the water begins to boil let it boil from 15 to 20 minutes, and the fish is done. Lift it out carefully and let it drain a couple of minutes before serving. Egg sauce is a drawn butter made of milk instead of water, with hard boiled eggs chopped fine and stirred in just before serving. Pour this sauce over the fish and garnish with sprigs of parsley, and it is ready to serve. The potatoes should be peeled, and if not small enough cut as small as walnuts, boiled or steamed, and rolled in melted butter and chopped parsley before serving.

How to Remove Dried Paint.

To remove paint that has dried in a fabric put the soiled spot over a dish and pour spirits of turpentine over it and let it stand for several hours. Then take the fabric in the hands and rub briskly. To remove paint that has just been acquired pour coal oil on the fabric. A brisk rubbing with a clean cloth will bring the paint right out. Hang the garment in the air, and the coal oil and turpentine will evaporate. If in haste, rub in gasoline and hang in the sun.

"Why do you leave me alone every evening?" asked Mrs. Mullins tearfully as her husband put on his hat preparatory to going out.

The Sioux Have Three of Them, and They Have Some Funny Cases.

Sioux Indians in North Dakota have a court of their own, in which three judges dispense justice. They hold court in a large tepee emblazoned with many colored pictures of horses, owls and eagles. Big Mane, Black Elk and Sam White Bird are the judges. They wear store clothes, and Judge Mane sports a watch and chain. They are at liberty to call court for any hour of the day they see fit. When a session of court is called, the Indian agent sends out Indian policemen to notify witnesses to appear in court at the appointed time. If, when court meets, it is found that some of the witnesses summoned have failed to put in an appearance, Indian police are again sent out, and they never return without bringing in the person or persons they were sent after. The judges themselves examine the witnesses, displaying considerable ingenuity in drawing from the reluctant and bashful witness his or her testimony.

When the examination has been completed, the tent is cleared, and the judges consult until they arrive at a decision. All offenses against common law as well as tribal laws, sun, scalp or war dances and the practicing of medicine men come before them for adjudication. A record of each case is carefully kept after the following fashion: "Chasing Crane was arrested by police for stealing Solomon Yellow Hawk's wife. Was sent up for 30 days at hard labor."

Bull Talker had a row with Mrs. White Deer, and she gave him an unmerciful drubbing. He was exceedingly crestfallen at being whipped by a woman, but his wife was not to be trifled with and was not disposed to see her husband imposed upon and thrashed by Mrs. White Deer, so she had the amazon arrested on the charge of "fighting and beating my husband." The trial was held in due time, the charges were sustained, and Mrs. White Deer was required to serve ten days in the agency jail.—New York Advertiser.

ON A CHERRY STONE.

Gesa Berger, the actor and newspaper man, has a picture in caligraphy that has a remarkable history. It is in size 30 by 42 inches and is the work of Joseph Loew, the most noted counterfeiter that the Austrian government ever knew.

When an application is made for a pardon in Austria, the red tape policy of that country compels the applicant to address the emperor with all his titles. Emperor Ferdinand had about 40 titles. Loew engraved all of these names, together with his petition for a pardon, on a cherry stone.

The letters were so fine that it required the aid of a powerful microscope to decipher them. One day, when the emperor visited the prison, Loew in person presented a cherry stone to the emperor and told him what it contained. The emperor made an examination and was so amazed at the work that he gave him an unconditional pardon. Not only did he pardon him, but gave him a position as a detective to trail down counterfeiters. Loew was a well informed man in all the arts and rascalities of counterfeiters, and in less than two years after his pardon he ran to the earth almost every counterfeiter in Austria and died a few years ago covered with detective honors. The picture, although made 50 years ago, is in a remarkable state of preservation.—Chicago Times.

Egypt's Cotton Crop.

Eight or ten years ago Egypt was insolvent. Today she is bristling with prosperity. The position of the fellaheen is constantly improving. The corvee is abolished, and the people have no more compulsory labor, except to keep the Nile within bounds at high flood, for which they are paid. The land taxes are gradually being reduced, and extortion and corruption seem to have been stamped out. She sells cereals enough to pay for the imported articles necessary to maintain her simple standard of life. I can't help thinking that cotton—or the money it produces—has played a part of no small importance in the work of administration that has brought all these blessings.

A birdseye view of the area of cotton cultivation would give the outline of a half opened fan. From the point of the delta near Cairo it stretches nearly to Port Said on the northeast and beyond Alexandria on the northwest, this simile being helped by the great arc curving into the Mediterranean, the narrow strip devoted to cotton along the Nile from Cairo, 100 miles southward, forming the handle. This area is veined with innumerable canals, branching from the Rosetta and Damietta arms of the Nile, which distribute the vitalizing waters.—North American Review.

How Samson Would Fight Corbett.

Some one in the crowd asked Strong Man Samson if he had ever had a setto with a boxer.

"I never have," said the athlete, "but I thought one time of challenging Corbett, and for three months I hatched a theory of attack and defense. My family objected to my engaging in any such contest, and I abandoned the idea. My idea of conquering the champion pugilist was to reverse the tactics of all fighters, which is to keep out of reach of their opponent's arm, and to keep so close to him in the battle as to render it impossible for him to strike with his full power at arm's length. At the same time my scheme was to play on his arm and wrist and to disable him with a few well directed blows at those points. I thought of putting myself in training for three months or more under the direction of a competent trainer. I'll guarantee that, if an experienced fighter will adopt my tactics, he can beat Corbett. I don't claim to be a pugilist, and a good boxer could undoubtedly knock me down despite my strength."—Washington Post.

SOMETHING ABOUT THE ANCIENT CHEMISTRY.

An Egyptian Alchemist's Laboratory in the Sixth or Seventh Century, B. C.—A Unique Manufacture—Population of the Earth.

Long before chemistry became a science many of its processes and apparatus were in common use. Professor H. Carrington Bolton has made a list of some of these, finding that the Egyptians were acquainted with the process of glassmaking at least as far back as 2500 B. C.; that crucibles of the fifteenth century B. C. are now in the Berlin museum, and that siphons also were used in the fifteenth century B. C. Blowpipes and bellows were early employed.

The earliest chemical laboratories now known were those of the Egyptian temples, in which the priests prepared the incense, oils, etc., used in the temple services. The Bible contains frequent chemical allusions. Cupellation is plainly described by Jeremiah, metallurgical operations by Job, Ezekial and others, and bellows by Jeremiah.

Geber, the Arabian physician of the eighth century, wrote minutely of chemical processes. He described solution, filtration, crystallization, fusion, sublimation, distillation, cupellation and various kinds of furnaces and apparatus.

Perhaps the earliest drawings of strictly chemical apparatus are the figures of distilling apparatus in a Greek papyrus of the eleventh century. An alchemist's laboratory of the sixth or seventh century was uncovered in Egypt in 1885, and its contents included a bronze furnace, about 60 bronze vases with beaks and some conical vessels resembling sand baths.

The balance as an instrument of precision reached a high development under the Arabians as early as the twelfth century, when very accurate specific gravity determinations were described.

A Unique Manufacture.

An industrial journal notes the curious fact that at only one establishment in the world is the "siren" fog signal manufactured. The instrument consists of two superposed disks with a like number of holes, one disk being stationary, and the other revolving, while at the same time air or steam is forced through the holes. When the holes are opposite each other, the steam will pass. When not opposite, the passage of the steam is stopped.

Thus when one of the disks revolves the steam passes in a series of puffs, and if these puffs succeed each other with sufficient frequency a note is produced, rising in pitch with the rapidity of revolution and increasing in power with the pressure of the steam. The disks are revolved by a small steam engine, which also opens and closes a valve to allow for the passage of the steam and thus gives what is known as the characteristic sound, for a siren used as a fog signal does not sound continuously, but gives a certain number of blasts of a definite length per minute. The steam is supplied by a boiler both for the engine and the siren, and to avoid possible breakdowns the boilers, engines and sirens are always in duplicate.

The Law of Finding.

The law of finding was declared many years ago, and it is well to note the case and the decision, says Business. A visitor to a store found a wallet containing a sum of money. He handed the wallet, with its contents, to the merchant to be returned to the owner. After three years, the owner having failed to appear, the finder demanded the wallet and the money from the merchant. The merchant refused to deliver them on the ground that they were found on his premises. The finder then sued the shopkeeper. It was decided that against all the world but the owner the title of the finder is perfect. The receiver of an article found is only the trustee, first of the owner, then of the finder if the owner does not appear. The receiver has no right to keep an article against the finder any more than the finder has to keep it against the owner.

Superstitions About Salt.

The spilling of salt has for generations been counted unlucky in many parts of England and Germany. A curious picture of mediaeval art on the subject of "The Last Supper" represents Judas Iscariot overturning the salt, a dark foreshadowing of an awful doom.

In the isle of Man there is a lingering superstition that to carry salt in the pocket is a help to good fortune, and to exchange or accept salt is so good an omen that a beggar has been known to decline food unless salt was added to the gift.

Satan and the witches were believed once on a time to hate salt with an inveterate hatred, and it was the custom to torment the arch fiend by sprinkling salt in a coffin, and brewers drove away the witch tribe by throwing a handful of salt on the top of the mash.

Animals Admitted to Heaven.

According to the Moslem's creed, ten animals are admitted into paradise besides man: 1. The dog Kratim, which accompanied the seven sleepers of Ephesus. 2. Balaam's ass, which spoke with the voice of a man to reprove the disobedient prophet. 3. Solomon's ant, of which he said, "Go to the ant, thou sluggard." 4. Jonah's whale. 5. The ram of Ismael, offered in sacrifice instead of Isaac. 6. The calf of Abraham. 7. The camel of Saleh. 8. The cuckoo of Belkis. 9. The ox of Moses. 10. Mohammed's mare called Al Borak. The following are sometimes added or substituted: The ass on which Jesus rode into Jerusalem and the ass on which the queen of Sheba rode when she visited Solomon.

Population of the Earth.

Europe, 357,379,000; Asia, 825,954,000; Africa, 163,953,000; America, 121,713,000; Australia, 3,230,000; oceanic islands, 7,420,000; polar regions, 80,400; total, 1,479,729,400. This estimate is credited to Drs. Wagner and Supare (Gotha, 1891). The estimate of area of the continents and islands by the same authorities is 52,821,684. Ravenstein's estimate of the earth's fertile region in square miles is 28,269,200; steppe, 13,901,000; desert, 4,180,000; polar region, 4,888,800. The population of Europe hardly exceeded 50,000,000 before the fifteenth century.

Paddle Your Own Canoe.

This expressive phrase, according to Walsh, first appeared in a poem published in May, 1854. The following stanzas give a fair example of the whole:

Voyager upon life's sea,
To yourself be true,
And whatever your lot may be
Paddle your own canoe.
Leave to heaven in humble trust
All you will to do,
But if you would succeed you must
Paddle your own canoe.

The doctor's folks at Bridgeport are said to have declined to aid him.

HEDGED IN.

SHANGHAI, Nov. 8.—The report of the capture of Talienwan by the Japanese has not been confirmed. The reports have been confirmed, however, that the Japanese are steadily repulsing detached bodies of Chinese, and that they have taken Port Kinchau. The Japanese force that landed on Oct. 25 north of Elliot island first marched eastward, probably to intercept the army of General Sung, which was retreating from Fung-Wang-Ching. They then turned westward toward Talienwaen, advancing five miles daily.

The reputation of the Japanese for humanity and for paying for their supplies is doing them immense services.

Consternation has been caused by the discovery that the Pei-Yang squadron has been caught in a trap at Port Arthur by the Japanese, owing to the neglect or overruling of Li Hung Chang's orders. Li Hung Chang disclaims any responsibility in the matter.

FROZEN TO DEATH.

Bodies of Two Whitman Citizens Found by Searchers In a Swamp.

WHITMAN, Mass., Nov. 8—Two of Whitman's citizens, Bradford S. Bryant and Daniel Powers, were enthusiastic gunners, and on Monday went to the Great Cedar swamp in Hanson to spend the day gunning.

They did not return at night, and Tuesday morning, when the big fall of snow was seen, their relatives became anxious. Late in the afternoon the team was found in the Brewster field on the Halifax side of the swamp, the horse half dead from cold and hunger.

About 11 o'clock they came across the body of Powers, fully a mile away from where the team was found. An hour later the body of Bryant was found, half a mile from where Powers was lying. Powers leaves a wife and five children and Bryant a father and mother.

WHAT IS THOUGHT OF IT.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 8.—In response to a request for an expression of his views regarding the result of the election, ex-President Harrison said: "It is the most extraordinary political revolution the country has ever witnessed. Wherever there was a free ballot, the vote of confidence given in 1892 to the Democratic party, if one was given, has been recalled, and a vote of utter repudiation substituted."

BLOOMINGTON, Ills., Nov. 8.—Hon. Adlai E. Stevenson says: "My opinion can be briefly stated. The result is due in part to the financial depression which came upon the country soon after the inauguration of Mr. Cleveland. While the Democrats were in no way responsible for this, they were made the scapegoats."

NEW YORK, Nov. 8.—Dr. Parkhurst says: "As to the general result I may say frankly it was one which I was not prepared for. I had braced myself up to bear defeat. This victory is due to the fact that the people are beginning to have their eyes opened. Not that they have suddenly become imbued with virtue, because it was not lack of virtue that kept them where they were, but because they have only begun to get a glimpse of the real light."

PORTLAND, Me., Nov. 8.—Thomas B. Reed says: "If the overturn proves as complete as it seems to have been, the country and especially the laboring men are to be congratulated." Mr. Reed was silent when congratulated on the prospect that he would be the next speaker of the house, though he seemed to look upon it as a settled thing.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8.—Senator Faulkner, chairman of the Democratic congressional campaign committee, attributes the result of the election to the stay-at-home vote and to the existing hard times.

Comment From Abroad.

Commenting upon the elections held in the United States, The Standard this morning says: Violent oscillations of public opinion do not point to a healthy political atmosphere. We may be sure, however, that there will be no revival of McKinleyism.

The Daily News says: The Democrats came into power on the crest of the wave of a popular dissatisfaction with the higher tariff. The Republicans come into power now on the strength of discontent because of the dismal of Democratic opportunities. The Democrats dallied with their chances.

The Times says: The immense difficulty in the government of American life here: The country is so vast and its interests are so immensely varied that it seems to pass the wit of man to discover an economic policy that will unite them. Although doubtful, it is not all certain that the defeat of the Democrats will not result in a return to protection.

THE AFTERMATH

To Rule in the Next Congressional House.

BOSTON, Nov. 8 - Late returns confirm earlier indications of a sweeping Republican victory throughout the state. Figures give Greenhalge (Rep.), 196,242; Russell (Dem.), 126,436, making Governor Greenhalge's plurality 67,806, as against a plurality in 1893 of 25,697. Twelve out of 13 congressmen are Republicans. In the city of Boston Governor Greenhalge's vote is 59,933, 791 more than he received last year, while Russell, the Democratic candidate, received 33,193, against a vote in 1893 of 39,942.

For the first time in more than 10 years the Republicans whittled the plurality down to but 2112, as against a plurality of 9715 last year, and 11,661 for ex-Governor W. E. Russell two years ago. In the western part of the state Worcester increased Greenhalge's plurality to 2256. The Democratic vote fell off everywhere, and the same is true in many parts of the state of the Republican vote, an aspect of the election that was due to the storm.

In the lower branch of the state legislature the Republicans made gains—28 Democrats and 27 Republicans being elected. The legislature will be overwhelmingly Republican.

Republican Plurality Swelled.

CONCORD, N. H., Nov. 8.—In returns from 238 towns and wards in New Hampshire already heard from Busiel (Rep.) has 46,533, Kent (Dem.) 26,129, Knowles (Pro.) 1619, and Epps (Pop.) 501, making Busiel's plurality over Kent 12,404. These same towns in 1892 gave Smith (Rep.) 38,196 and McKinney 35,128. Should the ratios of Republican gain and Democratic loss be the same in the 48 towns not yet heard from, Busiel's final plurality over Kent will be 14,752, the largest plurality ever given a gubernatorial candidate in the history of the Republican party in New Hampshire. In the First congressional district Stilloway (Rep.) has received, in the towns heard from 20,337 and Nash (Dem.) 14,623; in the Second congressional district Baker (Rep.) has 19,829 and McDaniel (Dem.) 14,355, indicating a final plurality for each Republican candidate of about 6500.

Democratic Defeat Complete.

PROVIDENCE, Nov. 8.—The Democratic defeat was complete. Every city in the state went Republican. The city of Newport, which a few days ago elected a Democratic mayor, gave Bull, the Republican congressional candidate, over 800 plurality. Bull's plurality in the state will be about 3000. The majority of Arnold (Rep.) in the Second district will be the largest ever given a candidate in the district.

Solidly Republican.

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 8.—Almost complete returns from the state indicate that the Republican state ticket is elected by between 12,000 and 15,000 majority. Republican congressmen are elected from all four districts by majorities of from 1200 to 5500.

IN THE EMPIRE STATE.

The Constitutional Amendments Are All Carried—Morton's Plurality is Over 150,000—Notes and Comments on the Republican Sweep.

NEW YORK, Nov. 8. Returns from all over the state indicate that all of the constitutional amendments have been adopted by large majorities. The amendments were voted for on three ballots. The first was for and against the revised constitution, excepting the reapportionment and canal amendments.

The second was for and against the reapportionment, and the third was the canal amendment. The first ballot included 31 amendments, among them the revision of the judiciary.

The reapportionment amendment forms a state senate of 50 members and assembly of 150.

The blanket amendment revises the judiciary, abolishes the office of coroner, separates municipal and state elections, provides for the sale of the Onondaga salt springs, virtually abolishes the race tracks in this state and permits the use of voting machines.

Returns show an apparent plurality in New York city for consolidation, or the greater New York, of over 30,000, while the rapid transit measure shows an apparent plurality of 82,000.

Although some of the amendments were hotly opposed, there is no probability that any of them have been defeated. They were all carried through on the crest of the tidal wave. A majority of the votes cast for an amendment is sufficient to make it part of the fundamental law of the state.

The result of the returns so far gives Hill a plurality in the city of 2549. The police returns give Hill a plurality of 2067. Outside of this city Morton has received a plurality of 151,218. Morton's plurality is 52,000 and Strong's 42,677.

The overthrow of Tammany in New York city and of the Hill machine in New York state is complete and emphatic. Hill loses heavily in the country districts, but in the metropolis his route is something unprecedented in the political annals of that city.

Normally Democratic by from 40,000 to 50,000 majority, New York city now expresses its opinion of Hill in the astonishing verdict of a bare plurality for the Democratic candidate. Kings county, frequently Democratic by from 10,000 to 10,500 majority, which gave Hill for governor in 1892 a majority of 14,000, now crushes him with a heavy hand. Morton carries the state by 150,000, the largest majority by far ever given the Republican ticket in this commonwealth.

No less emphatic is the demoralizing blow given to Tammany Hall. With the whole machinery of government in their hands and commanding a power never attained anywhere else in the country, the organization is put to rout by 40,000 majority; and the choice of a Republican governor and legislature to work in harmony with the new government of New York city gives assurance of such a house-cleaning as will undo the "Tiger" for good and all.

Next Senator Will Be Republican.

WILMINGTON, Del., Nov. 8.—Delaware returns complete give a Republican majority of 1200. The Republicans elect the governor and congressman and local tickets in two counties in the legislature. The senate stands five Democrats and four Republicans; house, 14 Republicans and seven Democrats. On joint ballot there are 18 Republicans and 12 Democrats. This insures a Republican successor to United States Senator Higgins.

Republicans Gained Ground.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 8.—From the latest official returns received from 85 counties in Missouri, Republican gains of 16,000 are shown, and the election of the entire state ticket, by a plurality of at least 10,000, is assured. The lower house of the legislature is Republican, but the Democrats, who have a majority in the senate, will be able to carry things on a joint ballot. At least six Democratic candidates for congress were defeated, and possibly several more will be counted in the Republican column when complete official returns are in.

Wilson Caught In the Wreck.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Nov. 8.—With the legislature having 15 Republican majority on joint ballot, the election of Stephen B. Elkins to succeed J. N. Camden as United States senator is generally conceded. Congressman Wilson went down in the Republican deluge.

The Republican state committee makes the following statement: Doverner (Rep.) First district, 1,233 majority; Dayton, Second, 3,000 majority over Wilson; Huling (Rep.), Third, 3,500 majority; Miller (Rep.), Fourth, 2,000 majority.

Conflicting Claims.

CHATTANOOGA, Nov. 8.—The election of H. Clay Evans (Rep.) over Governor Peter Turney has been conceded by the chairman of the Democratic state committee, and Evans claims to have won by 10,000 plurality. His election is a Waterloo for the Democracy, for the solid south is broken. F. V. Brown is elected to congress.

Fusion Ticket Ahead.

RALEIGH, Nov. 8.—The state judicial ticket is so close that it will require official vote to decide. The legislature is in doubt. The Democrats hope for it, but make no claims. Populist and Republican leaders are confident. Indications are that the fusion ticket has defeated the Democratic congressional candidates in six districts, making the congressional delegation stand three Democrats, two Republicans and four Populists.

Nelson Elected Governor by 20,000.

ST. PAUL, Nov. 8.—There is no doubt of the election of Nelson (Rep.) for governor by at least 20,000 plurality. The returns show a remarkable slump of the vote to Owen, the Populist candidate for governor. Two-thirds of this has come from the Democratic party, and the Democratic candidate for governor has received scarcely 60,000 votes in a total of 265,000. The delegation to congress will be solidly Republican.

Both Sides Claim the Delegate.

OMAHA, Nov. 8.—Only one-third of the state has been heard from. The figures thus far received indicate the election of Holcomb (Pop.-Dem.) for governor by a small plurality. The Republicans have probably elected five of the six congressmen, with the sixth still in doubt.

SALT LAKE CITY, Nov. 8.—Both sides claim the election of delegate to congress. The result is in doubt.

A Democratic Stronghold.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 8.—There seems to be no doubt of the election of a solid Democratic delegation from this state. Probably not over five of the 50 parishes in the state will show a Republican majority. The Republican state committee claims that Kernoshan, Coleman and Battle, Republican candidates for congress, were defeated by intimidation and fraud.

Waite Snowed Under.

DENVER, Nov. 8.—With Republican strongholds yet to be heard from, the majority for McIntyre (Rep.) for governor over Waite (Pop.) is 5000. The returns so far received indicate the election of McIntyre and the entire Republican state ticket by 15,000 or 20,000 plurality. Republicans carried even the Cripple Creek district, which was expected to give a large majority for Waite.

Owens Defeated.

LOUISVILLE, Nov. 8.—Some surprising changes occurred at the elections, among them the defeat of Owens, who defeated Breckinridge in the convention. The election in congressional districts resulted in the choice of six Democrats and four Republicans. The Fourth district is in doubt. The Democrats have probably elected all four judges of the court of appeals.

Republicans May Roll Up 60,000.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 8. — Chairman Gowdy says the state will go Republican by 60,000. He predicts the election of a Republican legislature in both branches. Republicans elect congressmen in the Sixth, Seventh, Tenth and Eleventh and probably in the Fifth and Thirteenth districts, a Republican gain of six.

First Time Since 1880.

DETROIT, Nov. 8.—Secretary Hosford of the Democratic committee concedes the election of the entire Republican congressional delegation, for the first time since 1880. John T. Rich (Rep.), for governor, is elected over Fisher (Dem.) by from 30,000 to 50,000. The election of the whole Republican state ticket is conceded.

Republicans Capture the State.

TOPEKA, Nov. 8.—The returns indicate the election of Morrill for governor and the entire Republican state ticket. The Republicans probably carry all but one congressional district, and the legislature is Republican on joint ballot. Republicans claim the defeat of Congressman Simpson by 2000.

A Complete Turnover.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 8.—More complete returns indicate that the Republican plurality for secretary of state will exceed 150,000. The present Ohio delegation in congress consists of 11 Democrats and 10 Republicans. The newly elected delegation consists of 19 Republicans and two Democrats.

Democrats Take About Everything.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Nov. 8.—The election for nine congressmen passed off very quietly, indeed, exceedingly so for some localities, where fights have been conspicuous heretofore. The Seventh district is doubtful and may go for Howard (Pop.) The others were all carried by Democrats.

Republicans Cut Into Democrats.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 8.—Maryland's solid Democratic front is broken, and the Republicans have made unprecedented gains in every direction. Republicans elect four out of six congressmen. In Baltimore Dobler (Rep.) defeated Kerr (Dem.) for supreme court judge.

A Clean Sweep.

CHICAGO, Nov. 8.—The state of Illinois is Republican by probably 100,000. The legislature, to elect a senator, is Republican. F. E. Downing (Dem.), of the Sixteenth district, is the only Democrat elected to congress from Illinois, all of the other 21 members being Republicans.

Republicans Claim Eight Congressmen.

MILWAUKEE, Nov. 8.—The Republicans of Wisconsin carried the state by over 15,000 plurality for Governor Upham and their state ticket. The Republicans have made gains in almost every voting precinct. The Republicans claim the election of eight and probably nine congressmen.

Assuredly Republican.

SIOUX FALLS, Nov. 8.—Returns indicate that the Republican ticket, including two congressmen-at-large, is elected by no less than 12,000 plurality, and the legislature will be two-thirds Republican. Pierre, the capital, has rolled up the largest Republican majority ever known there.

Usual Democratic Victory Claimed.

GALVESTON, Nov. 8.—The Galveston News claims the usual Democratic majority for state officers and the legislature in Texas, also the election of Democratic congressmen in all the districts, with possible exception of the Ninth and Tenth.

Republican Wave Swept Iowa.

DES MOINES, Nov. 8.—The Republicans appear to have made a clean sweep in Iowa, and nine Republican and one Populist congressmen have been elected. The indications are that the Republicans have carried this state by a plurality of 65,000.

Vote Fell Off.

LITTLE ROCK, Nov. 8. Returns from principal counties foreshadow the election of a solid Democratic delegation. The Republican vote did not "pan out" as was expected, and the Democratic vote fell off fully as much as was anticipated.

Straight Republican.

BISMARCK, N. D., Nov. 8.—Returns indicate the election to congress of Johnson (Rep.) by 10,000. Also the election of Allin (Rep.) and the entire state ticket by 4000 plurality. The legislature is overwhelmingly Republican.

Republicans Got Everything.

CHEYENNE, Wy., Nov. 8.—Returns so far received indicate the election of the entire Republican state ticket. Mundell (Rep.) is elected for congress, and the legislature will elect two Republican United States senators.

Mormons Voted For Republicans.

BOISE CITY, Nov. 8.—The entire Republican ticket is elected by 2000 majority or more. The returns indicate that the legislature will be Republican. Mormons' votes have been strongly Republican.

All Republicans.

TRENTON, Nov. 8. New Jersey sends a solid Republican delegation to congress, and when the legislature meets will name a Republican to succeed John R. McPherson in the senate.

Favorable to Republicans.

SANTA FE, Nov. 8.—Returns indicate the election of T. C. Catron (Rep.) for delegate. The legislature is still in doubt, the chances being favorable for a Republican majority.

The Vote of Montana.

HELENA, Mon., Nov. 8.—Hartman (Rep.) for congress, and Hunt (Rep.) for associate justice, are undoubtedly elected. The legislature will be Republican by 15 on joint ballot.

Budd Is Ahead.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 8.—About one-half the entire vote of the state is counted, and the result indicates that Budd (Dem.) for governor has a plurality of 7000.

CAPTAIN T. G. E. TRENCHARD OF PRINCETON.

The champion Princeton football eleven is playing in excellent form this year and will probably meet Yale on December 1 at New York. Under the captainge of "Doggie" Trenchard the team defeated Yale last year and Trenchard is again in command this season. He plays at right end and is a capable manager.

CATHOLIC CHURCH BURNED.

ANDOVER, Nov. 8.—Fire was discovered in St. Augustine's Roman Catholic church in this place at 2 o'clock this morning.

The flames were first seen in the basement and the fire department extinguished the fire there.

Then the flames shot from the roof of the structure and soon enveloped the steeple, and were beyond control.

Help was summoned from Ballardvale and Lawrence, and engines and men from those places arrived within half an hour, but too late to be of much service.

For a time during the progress of the fire the big lumber yard of Hardy & Cook nearby was threatened, and it was to save this place that the help of the neighboring departments was called.

The church was located on Essex street near Andover square, and in a locality covered with buildings of an inflammable nature.

During the past fortnight the church has been undergoing repairs, and only a few days ago the steeple was painted and a new cross put upon it.

The pastor is in New York.

The general belief is that the fire was due to a defective flue, but many believe that it was of incendiary origin.

The loss was about $25,000; the church being totally destroyed.

A BAD MAN

Is Frank Summers If He Has Been Doing Acts With Which He is Charged.

The capture made by Capt. Moffatt and Officer Ed. Fox, night before last, of Frank Summers, who lives in Carlisle, proved a good one.

He was charged with entering the house of F. H. Coburn on Stevens street. It is also alleged that he broke into the barn of Mr. Plummer in East Chelmsford Oct. 25, and stole a harness; also with entering Dutton's barn in Chelmsford and stealing 19 chickens, which he took to Carlisle and had dressed for market. Not satisfied with this, a sudden streak of humanity struck him and he stole two hives of bees from the premises of Mr. Mansfield, smothering the bees with sulphur. He thought it a pity for the bees to be exposed to the cold snap.

All but one of the chickens were found, and Summer admitted that one of them was cooked and eaten. One of the harnesses has been found, and Ayer Junction officers are engaged in looking up other depredations committed by Summers.

THE CITIZENS PARTY.

FITCHBURG, Nov. 8.—The citizens' party is itself again. It has been revived in the hopes of defeating the A. P. A. Caucuses were held last night, and each one was well attended, an average of 50 voters congregating in each place.

It is generally understood that the A. P. A. is to make an effort to get possesssion of the municipal offices, and the purpose of awakening the citizens' party is to gain the allegiance of all republican voters outside of the A. P. A. and in favor of granting licenses. It is also hoped that the democratic and republican parties, as organizations, will ally themselves with the citizens' party in the movement to down the A. P. A. Judging from the complexion of last night's caucuses, some success will attend their plans, as democrats and republicans turned out in about equal numbers.

A Resolution Was Proposed.

At a meeting of the republican city committee, last evening, after the regular business was finished, Jerome Manning, Esq., alluded to the treatment of Rev. Mr. Montgomery at the Monday evening rally, and offered the following resolution:

Resolved, that this committee hereby officially disclaims any and all responsibility for the uncivil treatment of Rev. Hugh Montgomery on the evening of Monday, Nov. 5, 1894, at Huntington hall and regrets sincerely that any intended or other discourtesy was offered him: and so earnestly disapproves of the same.

After some debate on the motion for its adoption the resolution was laid upon the table by a vote of 16 to 13. The meeting adjourned to the 14th inst., when the matter will undoubtedly come up again for action.

AFTER THE FIGHT

That Led to the Great Political Sweep.

The Republicans Planning for a Victory.

From state and national politics the attention of politicians turns to the municipal campaign. As in the greater campaign both parties are confident of victory.

Changes come suddenly now. We may go to sleep at night the staunchest democrats and wake up in the morning to find we are republicans. That has been our experience on Nov. 6.

Lowell was considered democratic by a large majority, so was Lawrence. The check list proved this and Marcellus Fletcher would swear to it on a stack of bibles but of what use are the democrats who do not vote the democratic ticket.

The political cyclone, earthquake or whatever it may be termed that swept the country on last Tuesday does not indicate a permanent change in political complexion. It was a change produced by a combination of causes such as may never again exist.

These causes had reference to state and national affairs rather than to municipal matters.

If the checklist shows a democratic majority, it differs in that respect from the election returns for the city.

The question now to be considered is whether the democrats of the city will be democrats at the city election or whether they will vote the republican ticket in that contest also.

It therefore behooves the democracy to select their best men to represent them in every office.

Otherwise defeat may come as in the state and national elections.

The temper of a large number of voters is very uncertain and cannot be trusted very far.

It will be useless this year for any man to force himself upon the voters. They will not have it. They would take delight in nailing such a man. They are all out of sorts as it were, they feel sore after eighteen months of hard times and they are looking for revenge.

If they suspect any man as a mere office seeker for the sake of holding office they will slaughter him.

But if they get every opportunity to make their own selections fairly, openly, squarely, they will stand by the nominees.

This is a peculiar situation. The voters are watching the course of events this year as never before and yet they are not swayed by reason. They vote from impulse and feel satisfied at having overturned the existing order of things, whether for better or worse.

Will it be so in the city election? That will depend upon the wisdom of the political managers directing affairs and upon the candidates nominated.

Not only is the election of mayor and city council at stake, but the heads of several departments will come up for reelection. The chief of police will end the unexpired term this year, the chief of the fire department will also close his term while as usual there will be a contest over the choice of superintendent of streets and other officers.

Besides the city is to be redistricted next year and if the republicans have the doing of this they can gerrymander the wards so as to give themselves an advantage for years to come.

It is quite likely that the defeat sustained will cause the democrats to get together and work harmoniously for victory.

The A. P. A. element will make itself felt of course against the democracy and the French vote will go mainly to the republican party.

All these things can be overcome, however, by united action if the strongest men the party can command be nominated.

It is expected that the Ward Two caucuses will be largest and liveliest ever held in the ward and there will be fully a dozen candidates for the council. It is the impression in the ward that the delegation to the municipal convention will either be for Freeman B. Puffer or George H. Marston.

Patrick H. Barry of Ward One who has served in the council is a candidate this year. He has strong backing.

The republicans are already planning to carry Ward Five and to elect a republican in Ward Three. They will also endeavor to elect four councilmen in Ward Two which has a democrat this year. That would give the republicans thirteen councilmen. They hope to elect six aldermen and if they succeed in both cases they will have things much their own way for the next few years. If the so called democrats that voted the republican ticket on Tuesday want this they can have it in addition to the state and national victories for republicans.

AUNT DINAH'S PARTY.

A very pleasant entertainment was the "Aunt Dinah's husking party," held in the Eliot church last evening. The stage scene was a natural reproduction of an old fashioned husking.

The stage was set to represent the interior of a barn, and pumpkins, squashes, hencoops, and grindstones were strewn about, together with a pile of unhusked corn.

All the soloists were attired in "country fashion." The fair opened with a comic dialogue between Robert Leatham and F. W. Lee. Then following the husking scene with a chorus of 18 voices, and solos by Mr. and Mrs. Burns, Mrs. Sherburne, G. F. Sturtevant, Mrs. Dr. Landers, Robt. Leatham, F. W. Lee, Edith Childs and Ruth Pease. After the entertainment refreshments were served.

FOR THE POOR.

Big Fair Opens in Huntington Hall By Which St. Joseph's Parish Poor Will Be Benefited.

The French people held an entertainment and sale in Huntington hall last evening in aid of the poor of St. Joseph's parish.

The hall was crowded, and those present were very liberal in their patronage of the tables. The sales tables were arranged around the hall and were in charge of the following:

William H. Siddon is an Englishman, (perhaps an A. P. A.,) and when at the Opera house he found that he had paid to see an "Irish" show he was mad, and went out between the acts to drown his anger.

During the play he disturbed every one by waving his hat in the air and yelling, "Hurrah for Greenhalge," "Greenhalge is an Englishman," etc. Officer Tilton gave Siddon all the chance in the world to keep quiet, but he persisted in yelling for Greenhalge and was arrested. In court he pleaded not guilty of drunkenness and said "It 'as wat I 'ad during the intervals wat turned me h'over." The court decided that Siddon's demonstration was $12 to the county, and the blooming lad was fined that "hamount." In future Willie will behave himself when among respectable people.

This Morning's Fire.

The alarm from box 165 at 10.20 today, was for a fire in a house out on Columbus road. The house is a two and one-half story one and is occupied by two families. What damage there was, was due principally to smoke.

Not Much Money Bet.

A well known local sporting man makes the assertion that not over $600 were bet on the outcome of the election, and while many fellows said they were looking for bets few were in earnest.

MEN MAY DIE

Men Caught in Belts and Pulleys and Mangled.

A very serious runaway accident occurred at the corner of Merrimack and Palmer streets yesterday. About 5 o'clock in the afternoon as Dr. McAvinnue was walking along Merrimack street at the Palmer street crossing, he was stopped by John Houston of Charles street who asked him to buy a ticket. While they were talking on the crossing, a horse attached to a democrat wagon belonging, it is said, to Councilman Barclay, which was running away down Merrimack, turned into Palmer street striking the two men. Dr. McAvinnue was thrown to the curbing but fortunately was not injured badly, while Houston struck the iron hydrant sustaining a very bad fracture of the skull. He was removed to Dr. Meigs' office where it was found he was in a dangerous condition and he was removed to the General hospital.

The ambulance was on the run this morning attending accident calls and at 11 o'clock had responded to four calls, one a fatality, two probably fatal and the fourth a serious accident.

The first occurred at 8.30 o'clock when Roger Kane, an employe of the Massachusetts mills fell down an elevator well, four stories, breaking his nose and thumb and sustaining internal injuries. He was removed to the corporation hospital.

At 9 o'clock a call from Kendall's mill came in and John Callahan, Sr., a well known operative of this mill, who is familiarly called "Jack," was the victim in this case. A cylinder head burst and Callahan who was near by, was thrown quite a distance striking with great force and sustaining a fractured skull. He was removed to St. John's hospital. He is in a bad condition and it is thought he cannot recover.

The explosion occurred in the ell of the mill where Callahan and his assistant John Daly were at work. The steam box was quite large and it is thought Mr. Callahan was struck by one of the iron bars which fasten the door of the box. The glass in every window in the room was blown out, boxes were blown down and big bolts cut. Daly was struck with a flying missle and was only slightly hurt.

Mr. Callahan is a well known and popular man, is a member of the Reform club and Post 42 G. A. R. He is a very careful workman and the cause of the accident is a mystery. Seven pounds of steam is the limit of the chest before it blows off but it is supposed there was much more than that amount in it at the time of the explosion. An operation was performed on Mr. Callahan, a piece of skull three inches square being removed. On account of his age his recovery is doubtful.

A Portuguese named Vichiracka, residing at 12 Chelmsford street, was the victim of a fatal accident at White's tannery at 10 o'clock. Vichiracka saw a man inside of a big cylinder, repairing it, and through curiosity looked over the top to watch him. The cylinder suddenly moved and caught his head fracturing the skull. The ambulance took him to St. John's hospital where he died in a short time.

The fourth accident occurred at the Bleachery where William F. Dollard, an employe, was caught in some belting and cut an artery in his arm. He was taken to St. John's and afterwards was taken to his home on Ryan street.

An examination of Kane's injuries was made at the corporation hospital and it was found that his skull is fractured, cheek bone crushed, one rib and his thumb broken. His recovery is very doubtful.

A Sad Case.

Mr. Kane who will not recover from his injuries according to the present indications has been in the country 26 years and has worked every working day since he came here. He has a wife and a large family.

NEW ENGLAND VETS.

The committee appointed to consider the advisibility of incorporating the league, reported adversely and the report was accepted and adopted.

It was voted to eliminate the benefit association from the league, and a new set of rules for the governing of the benefit branch was adopted, and notice given of proposed amendments to the constitution, to make it comply with the new conditions to be acted upon at the annual meeting, when the new rules of the benefit branch will go into effect.

A protest entered at the Pawtucket muster against upper brakes upon side stroke engines was referred to the league by the board of judges and provoked a heated discussion, and it was finally voted that the whole matter lay over till the annual meeting, in order to have a full vote of the delegates upon the question.

Charles A. Philbrick of Lowell, P. J. Donovan of Charlestown and Thomas P. Barley of Boston, were appointed a committee to audit the accounts of the treasurer.

P. J. Donovan of Charlestown, Thomas G. Gerrish of Lowell, Samuel L. Carpenter of Providence, W. T. King of Cambridge and John Exley of Newton were appointed a committee to nominate officers for the ensuing year.

It was voted that the annual meeting be called at 10 a. m. and President W. T. Cheswell of Boston, Secretary W. H. Hathaway of Hyde Park and Bernard McNellis of Charlestown, were appointed a committee to make all the arrangements for the annual dinner.

HONORED A MEMBER.

Representative-Elect O'Connor must have felt flattered at the warm reception tendered him by the Alpine club last evening. The young representative is a member of this popular organization, and the affair last evening was to celebrate his election to the legislature.

Twice have the Alpines found occasion to honor Mr. O'Connor, the previous time being when he was chosen to the council two years ago. The quarters of the club in the Howe block were crowded with members and their friends.

James H. Morris, president of the club, called to order, and welcomed the guests. He alluded to Mr. O'Connor's success in political life and his popularity with the voters of the district. He and the members of the club took pride in Mr. O'Connor's election and had only heartiest congratulations to offer the representative-elect.

Mr. O'Connor rose to respond and was greeted with applause. He recognized the efforts of the club members in his behalf and to them he extended his heartfelt thanks. He was glad to be numbered among the members of the Alpine club, between whom the closest relations exist.

Rep. Farley, who was present, was called upon and referred to the success attained by Mr. O'Connor during his brief career. He felt certain that the success attained as a member of the local government would be repeated in the state legislature.

Anthony A. Conway spoke in glowing terms of Mr. O'Connor and praised his political career. It pleased him to see the club honoring one of its members, who is a credit to the organization and to his own efforts.

There were vocal selections by T. F. Molloy, Frank Fagan, James Donnelly and John Murray.

Mr. Andrew Smith favored the company with several excellently rendered recitations which were thoroughly appreciated. Thomas H. Muldoon and several members of the Sawtelle dramatic company added to the evening's entertainment.

The whole affair was well planned and carried out.

It added to the reputation already secured by this organization for entertaining and displayed more than ever before the bond of friendship that holds its members together.

It was a great night for Rep.-elect O'Connor, the Alpine club and its friends.

O'NEIL IS DISGUSTED.

By Associated Press to THE SUN.

BOSTON, Nov. 8.—The Boston mayoralty fight is occupying the attention of the leaders at the Hub. It is given out on reliable authority that Col. Frank Peabody can have the democratic nomination if he wishes it. Some of the party leaders have met and discussed the question.

Mayor Mathews was considered the man to run but it is said he refused to allow his name to be used.

Then Col. Peabody was decided upon and the leaders are waiting to hear from him.

Congressman O'Neil was not considered available though it is said some two weeks ago Mayor Mathews suggested to him the feasability of running.

It is an open secret that Mr. O'Neil has been led to believe that he could have the nomination. Now it transpires that if another will accept it, he will not have it and naturally he does not like the way he has been treated.

He is quoted as saying today that if the nomination were now tendered him on a silver salver he would not look at it.

The address was by Dr. W. E. Gibbs of Lawrence on "Unrest," and he was followed by Dr. J. C. Snow of Boston, who spoke interestingly on "The call of today." With appropriate closing exercises the conference came to a close.

A REVIEW OF THE SITUATION.

There is a saying somewhere in the scriptures that "a house divided against itself will fall."

This maxim has an apt application to the fate of the democratic party in its present defeat in city, state and nation.

First of all the dissensions that rent the party in congress, the deadlock between the house and the senate, and the prolonged tariff contention were by themselves utterly disgusting to the country but combined with the hard times, the want of employment and consequent suffering on all sides, they cast the party into disfavor everywhere and on Tuesday that disfavor was given effect at the polls.

There were the silver men on one side, the sound money men on the other, the southern democrats and the northern democrats, the Hill faction and the Cleveland faction, each at variance with the others and with the whole. With so many factions pulling against one another and against the administration as a whole; with President Cleveland's readiness to write denunciatory letters, the wonder is that even so much was effected during the past two years.

The democratic party has changed the tariff law and changed it for the better. Not even the greatest enthusiasts on the high protective policy can offer any argument to the contrary. But the country was not convinced of this fact. The people had passed through eighteen months of hard times. They had been told that the elevation of the democratic party to power would bring good times: but a variety of circumstances made a prompt change in the tariff impossible.

Delays followed, the people became impatient and many of the unreasoning class resolved to oust the democrats at the first opportunity. They did so and hence the democratic slump all over the country.

Republicans will probably say that this was righteous treatment of the democratic party; but it was not. That party was unjustly charged with responsibility for the panic of republican creation and when by wise legislation it restored prosperity it was practically turned out of office. That is the manner in which the inscrutable will of the people sometimes asserts itself with an apparent disregard for justice; but nevertheless, the voice of the people must be obeyed.

To the causes which operated generally against the democracy throughout the nation, were superadded in New York state, the opposition to Tammany, the popular movement against corruption as represented by the Lexow committee, and the division between the followers of Hill and those of Cleveland together with the independents. All these combined were sufficient to give the republicans a victory in the city as well as in the state, and Senator Hill, Tammany and all they represent, went down in the general defeat.

The action of President Cleveland in failing to vote is severely criticised. Perhaps it would have been undignified for him to have written a letter or to have said a word in behalf of party interests in New York, but it would not have been any more so than his letter to Congressman Wilson.

That letter was used for campaign material by the republican press all over the country and there came not a word from the president to offset the effect of it.

In this state there was no hope at any time of defeating Gov. Greenhalge. He has made an excellent governor, and the fact that the A.P.A. was reported to be opposed to him brought him many democratic votes.

At the last hour this proscriptive order decided to support the governor and cut Lieut.-Gov. Wolcott, which they did to the extent of their power.

The contest between McEttrick and McNary, and that between Coakley and Cronan, lost a congressman and a state senator to the party, while the defeat of Senator Brady in this city can be attributed in some measure to the same cause—disunion and party treachery.

Thus the disaster that has come to the democratic party is traceable to well defined and unmistakable causes. A study of the figures and their reference to pre-existing conditions may teach democratic leaders to be more discreet in the future. It will show that union, harmony and combined effort are necessary to victory, necessary not only on election day but continuously as a matter of party policy. It will show also that the independent candidate is a dangerous tool in the hands of the enemy and should be met with stern opposition whenever he appeals to democrats for support.

The effect of this sweeping republican victory will be to stop the work of tariff reform, to give republicans control of the national house and perhaps of the senate also. President Cleveland's veto may be the only power that will stand between the country and a reversal of the tariff policy recently put into effect. Prosperity has just started in under the new tariff law and if it continues the republicans will claim that it came as a result of their victory as a sort of industrial complement to their great triumph, and that its permanency depends upon whether they will hold the reins of government.

I'LL JOIN THE LEAGUE.

"What! Double taxation here in Massachusetts! Impossible! Give me one instance of it and I'll join the League!" So ought every fair-minded man to say or leave the state, if Massachusetts is to retain its claim to fairness and good sense. So here goes for an illustration, and if it is not convincing to the meanest understanding, let us hear from you!

There are two taxes paid, as there ought to be, one on each property in each state where the property is protected and owes its contribution towards the government it lives under.

I swap with Brown, my stock for his. Now there are four taxes due, one still on each mill and two new taxes on the two lots of stock, although there is no more property than before. How is this? When I was a boy and went to school I was taught two and two made four; now I am a man and pay taxes—a great part of which go for education—I am told by the law that one and one make four.

Is the law absurd or unjust, or was I mistaught when a boy, and am I now cheated when I pay taxes for such a burlesque on education?

Now let Massachusetts race with Maine to see which first will right this wrong, and let every honest and intelligent man join the League with this end in view.

Another illustration. Smith of Chicago has grown up with the city, and now has $1,000,000 worth of property there, stores, elevators, factories and other properties situated in Illinois, and, as is entirely proper, taxed there. All this property is represented by shares in the corporations, even his real estate being incorporated for convenience sake.

He returns to Massachusetts, which he left 40 years ago, with no capital but a common school education and an honest and vigorous character, and wishes to replant his family here and end his days in a community claiming to be equaled by few and excelled by none. What happens? The assessor goes for him armed by our tax law, with the power to collect from him another, this time a Massachusetts tax, on this million of property, already once fully taxed elsewhere. Has another million of property been created by this man's removal from Chicago to Boston? Can property be doubled by the mere fact of the owner traveling a few miles from one state to another? If a millionaire with all his property in Rhode Island steps over the boundary into Massachusetts, does he thereby create another million on which it is proper for Massachusetts to tax him a second time?

No, he does not; it is not proper; it is not just; it is a burlesque on propriety and justice and good sense, but it is the law—our law—Massachusetts law, and unless you join the League you are a partner in the impropriety, the injustice and the folly! And how fortunate it is that property cannot be created with this ease, by merely moving from one state to another, as our law proposes; just think of the excitement and restlessness that would ensue!

Every man would buy a mileage ticket and tear around the country from state to state, doubling his wealth as many times a day as he struck a new state; or if he were young and active he could jump forwards and back again over the boundary line between Massachusetts and Rhode Island until he was rich enough to pay double taxation without a murmur!

You may say this is treating a serious subject with levity; but it is inevitable. Our tax law, now upheld only by the ignorant, who are the enemy of prosperity in any state, is loaded to the muzzle with levity, and when you strip your mind of prejudice and misinformation, and your heart of cupidity, and deal with the subject bared down to the naked facts, you cannot help striking the grotesque and the ridiculous. Life would be altogether too terrible and sad if the spectacle of folly only made us furious; rather let us laugh when we see what fools we have allowed ourselves to be; but then set to work with grim earnestness to establish a better record for ourselves on the score of good sense and justice.

Amusing Fiction.

"Have you read any fiction lately?"

The Reason Why.

Why are the cares of life so few?
What makes the sky so clear a blue?
What magic gilds the avenue?
I mutely question.
And why are all things changed to me?
I'm not bequeathed a legacy,
Nor is it just a case per se

This is the cause of my content:
Last evening to her house I went.
She's been away on pleasure bent
Three months and over.
And now she's home again and bland,
Sweet, smiling, with imprisoned hand
She's given me to understand—

—Life.

CURES OTHERS

To build up both solid flesh and strength after grip, pneumonia, fevers and other prostrating diseases, there is nothing to equal Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

PROSTRATION FOLLOWING GRIP.

MRS. GARRETT.

MRS. REUBEN GARRETT, King George C. H., Va., writes: "I was taken with grip which finally resulted in pneumonia. Was prostrated for three months. Had a terrible cough and was emaciated and very weak. Was fast drifting into 'quick consumption.' The doctor gave me medicines all the time. I grew weaker. He advised cod liver oil emulsion. I took two bottles of it without any relief. I had pain in my left shoulder and back. I wrote you, and you prescribed your 'Golden Medical Discovery.' I took only one bottle before I felt better. After two bottles I could sit up, and felt I had been saved from the grave. I increased rapidly in flesh and strength."

WHY NOT YOU?

SUNBEAMS.

The Boy and His Natural Enemy.

"You think I don't know nothin about you, don't you?" remarked the street boy to the policeman.

"You know enough about me to keep out of my reach," smiled the officer good naturedly.

"Anybody knows that," retorted the boy in a tone of scorn. "I know more'n that."

"What do you know?" and the officer manifested some interest.

"I know where you get things," said the boy mysteriously.

"What things?" and the officer became more interested.

"Oh, lots of things," and this time the boy winked slyly.

"I know where you got them shoes, for instance."

"Where?" he asked with some curiosity.

"You got 'em on yer feet," and the boy made haste to get beyond their reach.—Detroit Free Press.

His Inquiry Was Premature.

The Husband—Are you going out to vote today, dear?

The Wife—Yes, darling.

The Husband—For whom are you going to vote?

A Give Away All Around.

"I think," she said as she came into the room, "that I will give that poll parrot away."

"Yes," replied the young man who was calling. "It would be only fair. She has been doing as much for you."—Detroit Free Press.

Two Rats.

A London journal relates a rat story that is worth repeating. It says a gentleman, on coming home from India on a sailing ship, while in the tropics was one day bathing his hands and arms in a basin full of cool water placed on top of a sea chest. Suddenly a large rat jumped on the chest beside him and looked up in his face; then, placing its fore feet on the edge of the basin, drank long and deep. Although usually "rough on rats," the writer says "he had not the heart to hurt that one, for—to make use of a nautical term—'his coppers were hot.'" An acquaintance of mine, a truthful man, told me in Melbourne some years ago that one evening, while sitting on his veranda, with his old tom cat (nearly blind) close beside him, a large rat came from under the veranda, and going straight up to the cat, first with one paw and then the other, soundly smacked his face, then slowly retired once more beneath the veranda.—Boston Herald.

A Walking Fern.

There is a fern which by its peculiarities of growth may almost justly lay claim to the popular name of the "walking fern." The fronds arch over, and the fine slender points coming in contact with the soil take root. New growth again proceeds from the latter, which in its turn roots also, so that the locale of the plant is continually moving forward and suggesting the idea of walking. This peculiar fern is quite hardy and succeeds well in a compost of peat, leaf mold and sand in a shady position which is moist in summer and fairly dry in winter. The fronds are heart shaped, bright green in color, 6 inches to 12 inches long.—Montreal Star.

Philadelphia.

"It may almost be claimed," says Professor Warren P. Laird of the University of Pennsylvania, "that Philadelphia is at once the most curious, the most typical and the most instructive of American cities—curious because of the strange medley of its more pretentious buildings, and their singularly eccentric individualism, typical of American practice in its broadest aspect, because of the absence of restraint and defiance of precedent shown by the great majority of its architects, and instructive because of its contrast, for no other American city has so wide a field of architectural error to offer in contrast to its works of real merit."

ALL IS VANITY

Mrs. Vanderbilt Will Receive Three Million Dollars.

NEW YORK, Nov. 8.—Within the past fortnight the final financial arrangements are said to have been made between Mr. and Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, and suit for divorce will be begun under the laws of Rhode Island.

Colonel William Jay has been acting as the representative of Mrs. Vanderbilt since the quarrel was made public. He went abroad last spring, and it is assumed that he has accomplished all that is possible for his client.

W. K. VANDERBILT.

Colonel Jay arrived in this city last week, and Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt came from Newport to meet him. In a brief interview the terms agreed to by Mr. Vanderbilt were made known, and Colonel Jay returned to Newport with Mrs. Vanderbilt.

The sum offered by Mr. Vanderbilt was computed after long and careful consideration by the family lawyer. It is understood to be $3,000,000. As a wife of a multi-millionaire, Mrs. Vanderbilt has naturally a right to a very large sum as dower.

She is not, however, considered to be the injured party in the case, and her husband's generosity to her and her relatives has been in the past unstinted. It is therefore held that she

in receiving an amount of money somewhat larger than the law would possibly require. She will take the sum mentioned in place of alimony and of her right of dower.

It is now a month since Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt returned from Europe and went to Marble House, Newport. The divorce laws of Rhode Island are not difficult. Mrs. Vanderbilt has lived there for the necessary time to enable her to bring suit, as Marble House is really her home.

Her sister, Miss Armide Smith, who resided here in a house not far from the Vanderbilt residence, joined Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt in Paris and came over with her on the Lucania. Miss Smith has since been Mrs. Vanderbilt's guest at Marble House.

W. H. Vanderbilt's relatives are thoroughly in accord with him, and they have shown no sympathetic interest in Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt since her return.

Since her arrival in Newport, Mrs. Vanderbilt has secluded herself. She drives out daily for a couple of hours, and is invariably alone in her phaeton. She drives two spirited black horses, which are the highest steppers on the ocean drive.

While Mrs. Vanderbilt will have the legal custody of her children, it is believed that the two eldest, who are almost grown up, will be allowed to make their choice and live with their father or his family if they wish to.

after the the divorce is decreed is the phase of the case which is now exciting gossip. He is good-looking, amiable and fond of society. There is even a rumor already of the engagement of Mr. Vanderbilt to the widowed Duchess of Manchester, who is a very handsome woman.

Mrs. Vanderbilt's sister, Miss Jennie Smith, married Fernando Yznaga. She arranged an amicable divorce with him and married Mr. Tiffany. Mr Yznaga then married Miss Mabel Wright.

Another sister, Miss Minnie Smith, married a French nobleman named De Fonbilliot, from whom she is now separated. De Fonbilliot made a brave attempt to live at Mr. Vanderbilt's expense, but is now said to be working.

The remaining sister is the only one who has had no matrimonial unpleasantness. She is unmarried and the devoted friend of Mrs. Vanderbilt.

Did the Jury Err?

HAVERHILL, Mass., Nov. 8.—B. F. Brickett, one of the counsel for the defendants in the liquor cases recently tried at Lawrence, where the aldermen were convicted, claims to have discovered a serious flaw in the verdict of the jury on bringing defendants guilty on the second count, and not the first and third counts.

Death Resulted From Fractured Skull.

BOSTON, Nov. 8.—A. P. Hilton, an electric patrolman employed by the Boston Electric Light company, fell from a pole last night. His skull was fractured, and death ensued a few minutes afterward. While trimming the light, he received a shock which caused him to release his hold.

Killed His Wife.

TIVOLI, N. Y., Nov. 8.—Charles Baker quarrelled with his wife while intoxicated, and in his frenzy beat and kicked her most brutally. The woman ran shrieking from the house. Baker followed her into the yard and shot her dead. He then disappeared in the woods.

RIOTERS SENTENCED.

PLYMOUTH, Mass., Nov. 8.—There was great interest in the superior court proceedings here yesterday when the cases of the Old Colony officials, who were charged with being rioters, came up for sentence. The cases, five in number, have been pending since August, 1893, when the Rockland and Abington Street railway attempted to lay its tracks across the Old Colony rails in the center of the town of Abington. This attempt was opposed by the Old Colony, and a serious riot resulted, in which several people were badly injured.

Among those who figured prominently in the trouble were John C. Sanborn, superintendent of the Plymouth division; Christopher S. Bailey, railroad police officer; Angus L. Fraser, foreman of the corporation blacksmith shop; Emery H. Bryant, roadmaster of the Middleboro division, and John Bolen, a section foreman, all of whom were arrested. After a postponement from last February to this session of the court, the defendants were brought in for sentence yesterday.

Judge Sherman sentenced Sanborn and Bailey to four months in the house of correction, and Angus Fraser and John Bolen to two months each in the same institution. The specific charge upon which the men were indicted was that of inciting a riot, and the maximum penalty is imprisonment not exceeding three years, or a minimum fine of 1 cent without costs. The sentences surprised the citizens. A request for time to settle up their personal affairs before imprisonment was denied by the judge and the men yesterday afternoon went to the house of correction.

SALISBURY'S TRIBUTE

To Czar Alexander's Christianity Was Due the Peace of Europe.

LONDON, Nov. 8.—Ex-Prime Minister Salisbury, in a speech last night on London municipal politics, took occasion to refer to the death of Czar Alexander and expressed on behalf of the Conservative party deep grief because of the death of the ruler. At the beginning of the czar's reign, he said, he had some doubt as to his majesty's attitude, but long before he (Salisbury) left the foreign office he was convinced that Europe owed a debt of gratitude to the czar for the peace the restraint of his high Christian character secured on more than one occasion. A man with lower motive than he might have yielded to temporary irritation—in an autocrat a terrible thing. He left behind him a character that future rulers would do well to study and follow.

Railroad Men Killed.

PITTSBURG, Nov. 8.—A train on the Baltimore and Ohio, coming west, ran into the first section of a fast cattle train, two miles east of Rockwood, last evening. Six railroad men were killed and several others wounded. The railroad officials say no passengers were hurt.

HOW TO PRESERVE SKETCHES.

Pencil drawings may be rendered ineffaceable by a very simple process. Slightly warm a sheet of ordinary drawing paper; then place it carefully on the surface of a solution of white rosin in alcohol, leaving it there long enough to become thoroughly moistened. Afterward dry in a current of warm air. Paper prepared in this way has a very smooth surface. In order to fix the drawing, the paper is to be slightly warm for a few moments. This process may prove useful for the preservation of plans or designs when want of time or any other cause will not allow of draftsmen reproducing them in ink. A simpler plan than this is to brush over the back of the paper containing the pencil sketch with a weak solution of shellac in alcohol. Chalk and pencil drawings may be fixed, though not so thoroughly as by the above methods, by washing them with skimmilk or with water holding in solution a little isinglass or gum. When milk is used, great care must be taken that no cream remains in it, as it would cause the drawing to look streaky. An easy way to apply these fluids is to pour them into a shallow vessel and lay the drawing flat upon the surface of the liquid, after which remove gently and lay it in an inclined position on white blotting paper to drain and dry.

Pour half a pint of boiling milk, sweetened, into a basin containing two well whisked eggs. Stir the ingredients, put them into a clean saucepan and stir steadily over the fire until a thick custard is produced, taking care it does not boil, or it will be spoiled. Remove from the fire and put aside until cold; then add half a pint of whipped cream to the custard and either a little liquor or a teaspoonful of vanilla essence. Ascertain that the mixture is sweet enough and add some dried cherries and pineapple cut into small pieces and a few drops of carmine, just sufficient to give a pale pink tint.

Put the mixture into a pudding mold with a cover, or an ordinary round cocoa tin that will hold a pint will do quite as well, provided it has a well fitting cover. Stand the tin in a zinc pail, and pack it around tightly with equal quantities of rough ice, broken up into fairly small pieces, and freezing salt. About 3 pounds of each will be required. Then cover the pail entirely with a thick blanket and stand it in a warm corner of the kitchen, near the fire, but not too close, for 3½ hours. Then turn the pudding out of the tin, knocking it on the table if necessary to loosen it, and serve at once.

How to Clean Chamois Gloves.

The best way for cleaning chamois gloves is to put them on the hands and wash them in lukewarm water with white soap. Rinse them in clean lukewarm water and squeeze them as dry as possible. Then dry thoroughly while still on the hands with a clean towel, peel them off the hands and hang in an open window, first carefully pulling them into shape.

How Artists' Models Are Paid.

The regular rate in the art schools is 33⅓ cents an hour, or $10 a week for six days' work of four hours each. If no complaints are made by the art student or class monitor, the model gets a 25 per cent premium. "Good days" are few and far apart, for the poses are 25 minutes long, with only five minutes' rest, and in difficult positions more than human nature can endure. To get off the pose an instant or to keep it in a lazy manner provokes complaint, and although the croaker may be the veriest bungler it counts against the poor model, who may be trying to earn an honest livelihood.

How to Choose Good Lip Salves.

Bad digestion will often assert itself in broken or chapped lips, sores in the corners of the mouth, fever blisters and a coated tongue. Chronic sore mouths should be rubbed with sweet oil or pure glycerin at night. In the morning wash with a solution of alum or borax, a teaspoonful in a tumbler of water. Camphor ice is both healing and cleansing. Good cold cream is not a bad salve. All the druggists have supplies and cheerfully dispense 5 cent quantities. Citron ointment is one of the old reliable lip salves kept by all chemists. It is applied to the sore with a soft linen cloth. When the mouth is sore, the diet should be changed to vegetable foods.

How to Boil Halibut.

Tie it nicely in a linen cloth, put it in a kettle of cold water, enough to cover it, and add a tablespoonful of vinegar and a little salt, and after the water begins to boil let it boil from 15 to 20 minutes, and the fish is done. Lift it out carefully and let it drain a couple of minutes before serving. Egg sauce is a drawn butter made of milk instead of water, with hard boiled eggs chopped fine and stirred in just before serving. Pour this sauce over the fish and garnish with sprigs of parsley, and it is ready to serve. The potatoes should be peeled, and if not small enough cut as small as walnuts, boiled or steamed, and rolled in melted butter and chopped parsley before serving.

How to Remove Dried Paint.

To remove paint that has dried in a fabric put the soiled spot over a dish and pour spirits of turpentine over it and let it stand for several hours. Then take the fabric in the hands and rub briskly. To remove paint that has just been acquired pour coal oil on the fabric. A brisk rubbing with a clean cloth will bring the paint right out. Hang the garment in the air, and the coal oil and turpentine will evaporate. If in haste, rub in gasoline and hang in the sun.

INDIAN JUDGES.

The Sioux Have Three of Them, and They Have Some Funny Cases.

Sioux Indians in North Dakota have a court of their own, in which three judges dispense justice. They hold court in a large tepee emblazoned with many colored pictures of horses, owls and eagles. Big Mane, Black Elk and Sam White Bird are the judges. They wear store clothes, and Judge Mane sports a watch and chain. They are at liberty to call court for any hour of the day they see fit. When a session of court is called, the Indian agent sends out Indian policemen to notify witnesses to appear in court at the appointed time. If, when court meets, it is found that some of the witnesses summoned have failed to put in an appearance, Indian police are again sent out, and they never return without bringing in the person or persons they were sent after. The judges themselves examine the witnesses, displaying considerable ingenuity in drawing from the reluctant and bashful witness his or her testimony.

When the examination has been completed, the tent is cleared, and the judges consult until they arrive at a decision. All offenses against common law as well as tribal laws, sun, scalp or war dances and the practicing of medicine men come before them for adjudication. A record of each case is carefully kept after the following fashion: "Chasing Crane was arrested by police for stealing Solomon Yellow Hawk's wife. Was sent up for 80 days at hard labor."

Bull Talker had a row with Mrs. White Deer, and she gave him an unmerciful drubbing. He was exceedingly crestfallen at being whipped by a woman, but his wife was not to be trifled with and was not disposed to see her husband imposed upon and thrashed by Mrs. White Deer, so she had the amazon arrested on the charge of "fighting and beating my husband." The trial was held in due time, the charges were sustained, and Mrs. White Deer was required to serve ten days in the agency jail.—New York Advertiser.

ON A CHERRY STONE.

Gosa Berger, the actor and newspaper man, has a picture in calligraphy that has a remarkable history. It is in size 30 by 42 inches and is the work of Joseph Loew, the most noted counterfeiter that the Austrian government ever knew.

When an application is made for a pardon in Austria, the red tape policy of that country compels the applicant to address the emperor with all his titles. Emperor Ferdinand had about 40 titles. Loew engraved all of these names, together with his petition for a pardon, on a cherry stone.

The letters were so fine that it required the aid of a powerful microscope to decipher them. One day, when the emperor visited the prison, Loew in person presented a cherry stone to the emperor and told him what it contained. The emperor made an examination and was so amazed at the work that he gave him an unconditional pardon. Not only did he pardon him, but gave him a position as a detective to trail down counterfeiters. Loew was a well informed man in all the arts and rascalities of counterfeiters, and in less than two years after his pardon he ran to the earth almost every counterfeiter in Austria and died a few years ago covered with detective honors. The picture, although made 50 years ago, is in a remarkable state of preservation.—Chicago Times.

Egypt's Cotton Crop.

Eight or ten years ago Egypt was insolvent. Today she is bristling with prosperity. The position of the fellaheen is constantly improving. The corvee is abolished, and the people have no more compulsory labor, except to keep the Nile within bounds at high flood, for which they are paid. The land taxes are gradually being reduced, and extortion and corruption seem to have been stamped out. She sells cereals enough to pay for the imported articles necessary to maintain her simple standard of life. I can't help thinking that cotton—or the money it produces—has played a part of no small importance in the work of administration that has brought all these blessings.

A birdseye view of the area of cotton cultivation would give the outline of a half opened fan. From the point of the delta near Cairo it stretches nearly to Port Said on the northeast and beyond Alexandria on the northwest, this simile being helped by the great arc curving into the Mediterranean, the narrow strip devoted to cotton along the Nile from Cairo, 100 miles southward, forming the handle. This area is veined with innumerable canals, branching from the Rosetta and Damietta arms of the Nile, which distribute the vitalizing waters.—North American Review.

How Samson Would Fight Corbett.

Some one in the crowd asked Strong Man Samson if he had ever had a setto with a boxer.

"I never have," said the athlete, "but I thought one time of challenging Corbett, and for three months I hatched a theory of attack and defense. My family objected to my engaging in any such contest, and I abandoned the idea. My idea of conquering the champion pugilist was to reverse the tactics of all fighters, which is to keep out of reach of their opponent's arm, and to keep so close to him in the battle as to render it impossible for him to strike with his full power at arm's length. At the same time my scheme was to play on his arm and wrist and to disable him with a few well directed blows at those points. I thought of putting myself in training for three months or more under the direction of a competent trainer. I'll guarantee that, if an experienced fighter will adopt my tactics, he can best Corbett. I don't claim to be a pugilist, and a good boxer could undoubtedly knock me down despite my strength."—Washington Post.

SOMETHING ABOUT THE ANCIENT CHEMISTRY.

Long before chemistry became a science many of its processes and apparatus were in common use. Professor H. Carrington Bolton has made a list of some of these, finding that the Egyptians were acquainted with the process of glassmaking at least as far back as 2500 B. C.; that crucibles of the fifteenth century B. C. are now in the Berlin museum, and that siphons also were used in the fifteenth century B. C. Blowpipes and bellows were early employed.

The earliest chemical laboratories now known were those of the Egyptian temples, in which the priests prepared the incense, oils, etc., used in the temple services. The Bible contains frequent chemical allusions. Cupellation is plainly described by Jeremiah, metallurgical operations by Job, Ezekial and others, and bellows by Jeremiah.

Geber, the Arabian physician of the eighth century, wrote minutely of chemical processes. He described solution, filtration, crystallization, fusion, sublimation, distillation, cupellation and various kinds of furnaces and apparatus.

Perhaps the earliest drawings of strictly chemical apparatus are the figures of distilling apparatus in a Greek papyrus of the eleventh century. An alchemist's laboratory of the sixth or seventh century was uncovered in Egypt in 1885, and its contents included a bronze furnace, about 50 bronze vases with beaks and some conical vessels resembling sand baths.

The balance as an instrument of precision reached a high development under the Arabians as early as the twelfth century, when very accurate specific gravity determinations were described.

A Unique Manufacture.

An industrial journal notes the curious fact that at only one establishment in the world is the "siren" fog signal manufactured. The instrument consists of two superposed disks with a like number of holes, one disk being stationary, and the other revolving, while at the same time air or steam is forced through the holes. When the holes are opposite each other, the steam will pass. When not opposite, the passage of the steam is stopped.

Thus when one of the disks revolves the steam passes in a series of puffs, and if these puffs succeed each other with sufficient frequency a note is produced, rising in pitch with the rapidity of revolution and increasing in power with the pressure of the steam. The disks are revolved by a small steam engine, which also opens and closes a valve to allow for the passage of the steam and thus gives what is known as the characteristic sound, for a siren used as a fog signal does not sound continuously, but gives a certain number of blasts of a definite length per minute. The steam is supplied by a boiler both for the engine and the siren, and to avoid possible breakdowns the boilers, engines and sirens are always in duplicate.

The Law of Finding.

The law of finding was declared many years ago, and it is well to note the case and the decision, says Business. A visitor to a store found a wallet containing a sum of money. He handed the wallet, with its contents, to the merchant to be returned to the owner. After three years, the owner having failed to appear, the finder demanded the wallet and the money from the merchant. The merchant refused to deliver them on the ground that they were found on his premises. The finder then sued the shopkeeper. It was decided that against all the world but the owner the title of the finder is perfect. The receiver of an article found is only the trustee, first of the owner, then of the finder if the owner does not appear. The receiver has no right to keep an article against the finder any more than the finder has to keep it against the owner.

Superstitions About Salt.

The spilling of salt has for generations been counted unlucky in many parts of England and Germany. A curious picture of mediæval art on the subject of "The Last Suppper" represents Judas Iscariot overturning the salt, a dark foreshadowing of an awful doom.

In the isle of Man there is a lingering superstition that to carry salt in the pocket is a help to good fortune, and to exchange or accept salt is so good an omen that a beggar has been known to decline food unless salt was added to the gift.

Satan and the witches were believed once on a time to hate salt with an inveterate hatred, and it was the custom to torment the arch fiend by sprinkling salt in a coffin, and brewers drove away the witch tribe by throwing a handful of salt on the top of the mash.

Animals Admitted to Heaven.

According to the Moslem's creed, ten animals are admitted into paradise besides man: 1. The dog Kratim, which accompanied the seven sleepers of Ephesus. 2. Balaam's ass, which spoke with the voice of a man to reprove the disobedient prophet. 3. Solomon's ant, of which he said, "Go to the ant, thou sluggard." 4. Jonah's whale. 5. The ram of Ismael, offered in sacrifice instead of Isaac. 6. The calf of Abraham. 7. The camel of Saleb. 8. The cuckoo of Belkis. 9. The ox of Moses. 10. Mohammed's mare called Al Borak. The following are sometimes added or substituted: The ass on which Jesus rode into Jerusalem and the ass on which the queen of Sheba rode when she visited Solomon.

This estimate is credited to Drs. Wagner and Supan (Gotha, 1891). The estimate of area of the continents and islands by the same authorities is 52,821,684. Ravenstein's estimate of the earth's fertile region in square miles is 28,269,200; steppe, 13,901,000; desert, 4,180,000; polar region, 4,888,800. The population of Europe hardly exceeded 50,000,000 before the fifteenth century.

Paddle Your Own Canoe.

This expressive phrase, according to Walsh, first appeared in a poem published in May, 1854. The following stanzas give a fair example of the whole:

Voyager upon life's sea,
To yourself be true,
And whatever your lot may be
Paddle your own canoe,
Leave to heaven in humble trust
All you will to do,
But if you would succeed you must
Paddle your own canoe.

The doctor's folks at Bridgeport are said to have declined to aid him.

HEDGED IN.

SHANGHAI, Nov. 8.—The report of the capture of Talienwan by the Japanese has not been confirmed. The reports have been confirmed, however, that the Japanese are steadily repulsing detached bodies of Chinese, and that they have taken Port Kinchau. The Japanese force that landed on Oct. 25 north of Elliot island first marched eastward, probably to intercept the army of General Sung, which was retreating from Fung-Wang-Ching. They then turned westward toward Talienwaen, advancing five miles daily.

The reputation of the Japanese for humanity and for paying for their supplies is doing them much service.

Consternation has been caused by the discovery that the Pei-Yang squadron has been caught in a trap at Port Arthur by the Japanese, owing to the neglect or overruling of Li Hung Chang's orders. Li Hung Chang disclaims any responsibility in the matter.

FROZEN TO DEATH.

Bodies of Two Whitman Citizens Found by Searchers In a Swamp.

WHITMAN, Mass., Nov. 8—Two of Whitman's citizens, Bradford S. Bryant and Daniel Powers, were enthusiastic gunners, and on Monday went to the Great Cedar swamp in Hanson to spend the day gunning.

They did not return at night, and Tuesday morning, when the big fall of snow was seen, their relatives became anxious. Late in the afternoon the team was found in the Brewster field on the Halifax side of the swamp, the horse half dead from cold and hunger.

A big ground started out yesterday. The cedar swamp is one of the most dangerous localities in this vicinity. The searching party, divided into five squads, combined and started south.

About 11 o'clock they came across the body of Powers, only a mile away from where the team was found. An hour later the body of Bryant was found, half a mile from where Powers was lying. Powers leaves a wife and five children and Bryant a father and mother.

WHAT IS THOUGHT OF IT.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 8.—In response to a request for an expression of his views regarding the result of the election, ex-President Harrison said: "It is the most extraordinary political revolution the country has ever witnessed. Wherever there was a free ballot, the vote of confidence given in 1892 to the Democratic party, if one was given, has been recalled, and a vote of utter repudiation substituted."

BLOOMINGTON, Ills., Nov. 8.—Hon. Adlai E. Stevenson says: "My opinion can be briefly stated. The result is due in part to the financial depression which came upon the country soon after the inauguration of Mr. Cleveland. While the Democrats were in no way responsible for this, they were made the scapegoats."

NEW YORK, Nov. 8.—Dr. Parkhurst says: "As to the general result I may say frankly it was one which I was not prepared for. I had braced myself up to bear defeat. This victory is due to the fact that the people are beginning to have their eyes opened. Not that they have suddenly become imbued with virtue, because it was not lack of virtue that kept them where they were, but because they have only begun to get a glimpse of the real light."

PORTLAND, Me., Nov. 8.—Thomas B. Reed says: "If the overturn proves as complete as it seems to have been, the country and especially the laboring men are to be congratulated." Mr. Reed was silent when congratulated on the prospect that he would be the next speaker of the house, though he seemed to look upon it as a settled thing.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8.—Senator Faulkner, chairman of the Democratic congressional campaign committee, attributes the result of the election to the stay-at-home vote and to the existing hard times.

Comment From Abroad.

Commenting upon the elections held in the United States, The Standard this morning says: Violent oscillations of public opinion do not point to a healthy political atmosphere. We may be sure, however, that there will be no revival of McKinleyism.

The Daily News says: The Democrats came into power on the crest of the wave of a popular dissatisfaction with the higher tariff. The Republicans come into power now on the strength of discontent because of the disuse of Democratic opportunities. The Democrats dallied with their chances.

The Times says: The immense difficulty in the government of America lies here: The country is so vast and its interests are so immensely varied that it seems to pass the wit of man to discover an economic policy that will unite them. Although doubtful, it is not all certain that the defeat of the Democrats will not result in a return to protection.

THE AFTERMATH

To Rule in the Next Congressional House.

BOSTON, Nov. 8.—Late returns confirm earlier indications of a sweeping Republican victory throughout the state. Figures give Greenhalge (Rep.), 196,242; Russell (Dem.), 128,436, making Governor Greenhalge's plurality 67,806, as against a plurality in 1892 of 35,667. Twelve out of 13 congressmen are Republicans. In the city of Boston Governor Greenhalge's vote is 59,631, 794 more than he received last year, while Russell, the Democratic candidate, received 53,143, against a vote in 1892 of 39,012.

For the first time in more than 10 years the Republicans whittled the plurality down to but 3112, as against a plurality of 9715 last year, and 11,000 for ex-Governor W. E. Russell two years ago. In the western part of the state Worcester increased Greenhalge's plurality to 3225. The Democratic vote fell off everywhere, and the same is true in many parts of the state of the Republican vote, an aspect of the election that was due to the storm.

In the lower branch of the state legislature the Republicans made gains—28 Democrats and 240 Republicans being elected. The legislature will be overwhelmingly Republican.

Republican Plurality Swelled.

CONCORD, N. H., Nov. 8.—In returns from 236 towns and wards in New Hampshire already heard from Busiel (Rep.) has 40,536, Kent (Dem.) 28,120, Knowles (Pro.) 1619, and Epps (Pop.) 594, making Busiel's plurality over Kent 12,404. These same towns in 1892 gave Smith (Rep.) 38,156 and McKinney 35,128. Should the ratios of Republican gain and Democratic loss be the same in the 48 towns not yet heard from, Busiel's final plurality over Kent will be 14,752, the largest plurality ever given a gubernatorial candidate in the history of the Republican party in New Hampshire. In the First congressional district Sulloway (Rep.) has received in the towns heard from 21,037 and Nash (Dem.) 11,663; in the Second congressional district Baker (Rep.) has 19,829 and McDaniel (Dem.) 14,335, indicating a final plurality for each Republican candidate of about 6500.

Democratic Defeat Complete.

PROVIDENCE, Nov. 8.—The Democratic defeat was complete. Every city in the state went Republican. The city of Newport, which a few days ago elected a Democratic mayor, gave Bull, the Republican congressional candidate, over 800 plurality. Bull's plurality in the state will be about 4000. The majority of Arnold (Rep.) in the Second district will be the largest ever given a candidate in the district.

Solidly Republican.

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 8.—Almost complete returns from the state indicate that the Republican state ticket is elected by between 12,000 and 15,000 majority. Republican congressmen are elected from all four districts by majorities of from 1200 to 6500.

IN THE EMPIRE STATE.

The Constitutional Amendments Are All Carried—Morton's Plurality is Over 150,000—Notes and Comments on the Republican Sweep.

NEW YORK, Nov. 8.—Returns from all over the state indicate that all of the constitutional amendments have been adopted by large majorities. The amendments were voted for on three ballots. The first was for and against the revised constitution, excepting the reapportionment and canal amendments.

The second was for and against the reapportionment, and the third was the canal amendment. The first ballot included 31 amendments, among them the revision of the judiciary.

The reapportionment amendment forms a state senate of 50 members and assembly of 150.

The blanket amendment revises the judiciary, abolishes the office of coroner, separates municipal and state elections, provides for the sale of the Onondaga salt springs, virtually abolishes the race tracks in this state and permits the use of voting machines.

Returns show an apparent plurality in New York city for consolidation, or the greater New York, of over 30,000, while the rapid transit measure shows an apparent plurality of 82,400.

Although some of the amendments were hotly opposed, there is no probability that any of them have been defeated. They were all carried through on the crest of the tidal wave. A majority of the votes cast for an amendment is sufficient to make it part of the fundamental law of the state.

The result of the returns so far gives Hill a plurality in the city of 2549. The police returns give Hill a plurality of 2907. Outside of this city Morton has received a plurality of 151,218. Goff's plurality is 62,000 and Strong's 42,617.

The overthrow of Tammany in New York city and of the Hill machine in New York state is complete and emphatic. Hill loses heavily in the country districts, but in the metropolis his rout is something unprecedented in the political annals of that city.

Normally Democratic by from 40,000 to 50,000 majority, New York city now expresses its opinion of Hill in the astonishing verdict of a bare plurality for the Democratic candidate. Kings county, frequently Democratic by from 30,000 to 50,000 majority, which gave Hill for governor in 1888 a majority of 14,000, now crushes him with a heavy hand. Morton carries the state by 150,000, the largest majority by far ever given the Republican ticket in this commonwealth.

No less emphatic is the demoralizing blow given to Tammany Hall. With the whole machinery of government in their hands and commanding a power never attained anywhere else in the country, the organization is put to rout by 40,000 majority; and the choice of a Republican governor and legislature to work in harmony with the new government of New York city gives assurance of such a house-cleaning as will undo the "Tiger" for good and all.

Next Senator Will Be Republican.

WILMINGTON, Del., Nov. 8.—Delaware returns complete give a Republican majority of 1300. The Republicans elect the governor and congressman and local tickets in two counties in the legislature. The senate stands five Democrats and four Republicans; house, 14 Republicans and seven Democrats. On joint ballot there are 18 Republicans and 12 Democrats. This insures a Republican successor to United States Senator Higgins.

Republicans Gained Ground.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 8.—From the latest official returns received from 35 counties in Missouri, Republican gains of 16,000 are shown, and the election of the entire state ticket, by a plurality of at least 10,000, is assured. The lower house of the legislature is Republican, but the Democrats, who have a majority in the senate, will be able to carry things on a joint ballot. At least six Democratic candidates for congress were defeated, and possibly several more will be counted in the Republican column when complete official returns are in.

Wilson Caught In the Wreck.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Nov. 8.—With the legislature having 15 Republican majority on joint ballot, the election of Stephen B. Elkins to succeed J. N. Camden as United States senator is generally conceded. Congressman Wilson went down in the Republican deluge.

Conflicting Claims.

CHATTANOOGA, Nov. 8.—The election of H. Clay Evans (Rep.) over Governor Peter Turney has been conceded by the chairman of the Democratic state committee, and Evans claims to have won by 10,000 plurality. His election is a Waterloo for the Democracy, for the solid south is broken. F. V. Brown is elected to congress.

Fusion Ticket Ahead.

RALEIGH, Nov. 8.—The state judicial ticket is so close that it will require official vote to decide. The legislature is in doubt. The Democrats hope for it, but make no claims. Populist and Republican leaders are confident. Indications are that the fusion ticket has defeated the Democratic congressional candidates in six districts, making the congressional delegation stand three Democrats, two Republicans and four Populists.

Nelson Elected Governor by 20,000.

ST. PAUL, Nov. 8.—There is no doubt of the election of Nelson (Rep.) for governor by at least 20,000 plurality. The returns show a remarkable slump of the vote to Owen, the Populist candidate for governor. Two-thirds of this has come from the Democratic party, and the Democratic candidate for governor has received scarcely 60,000 votes in a total of 265,000. The delegation to congress will be solidly Republican.

Both Sides Claim the Delegate.

OMAHA, Nov. 8.—Only one-third of the state has been heard from. The figures thus far received indicate the election of Holcomb (Pop.-Dem.) for governor by a small plurality. The Republicans have probably elected five of the six congressmen, with the sixth still in doubt.

SALT LAKE CITY, Nov. 8.—Both sides claim the election of delegate to congress. The result is in doubt.

A Democratic Stronghold.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 8.—There seems to be no doubt of the election of a solid Democratic delegation from this state. Probably not over five of the 59 parishes in the state will show a Republican majority. The Republican state committee claims that Kernochan, Coleman and Blattic, Republican candidates for congress, were defeated by intimidation and fraud.

Waite Snowed Under.

DENVER, Nov. 8.—With Republican strongholds yet to be heard from, the majority for McIntyre (Rep.) for governor over Waite (Pop.) is 5000. The returns so far received indicate the election of McIntyre and the entire Republican state ticket by 15,000 or 20,000 plurality. Republicans carried even the Cripple Creek district, which was expected to give a large majority for Waite.

Owens Defeated.

LOUISVILLE, Nov. 8.—Some surprising changes occurred at the elections, among them the defeat of Owens, who defeated Breckinridge in the convention. The election in congressional districts resulted in the choice of six Democrats and four Republicans. The Fourth district is in doubt. The Democrats have probably elected all four judges of the court of appeals.

Republicans May Roll Up 60,000.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 8. — Chairman Gowdy says the state will go Republican by 60,000. He predicts the election of a Republican legislature in both branches. Republicans elect congressmen in the Sixth, Seventh, Tenth and Eleventh and probably in the Fifth and Thirteenth districts, a Republican gain of six.

First Time Since 1880.

DETROIT, Nov. 8.—Secretary Husford of the Democratic committee concedes the election of the entire Republican congressional delegation, for the first time since 1880. John T. Rich (Rep.), for governor, is elected over Fisher (Dem.) by from 30,000 to 50,000. The election of the whole Republican state ticket is conceded.

Republicans Capture the State.

TOPEKA, Nov. 8.—The returns indicate the election of Morrill for governor and the entire Republican state ticket. The Republicans probably carry all but one congressional district, and the legislature is Republican on joint ballot. Republicans claim the defeat of Congressman Simpson by 2000.

A Complete Turnover.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 8.—More complete returns indicate that the Republican plurality for secretary of state will exceed 150,000. The present Ohio delegation in congress consists of 11 Democrats and 10 Republicans. The newly elected delegation consists of 19 Republicans and two Democrats.

Democrats Take About Everything.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Nov. 8.—The election for nine congressmen passed off very quietly, indeed, exceedingly so for some localities, where fights have been conspicuous heretofore. The Seventh district is doubtful and may go for Howard (Pop.) The others were all carried by Democrats.

Republicans Cut Into Democrats.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 8.—Maryland's solid Democratic front is broken, and the Republicans have made unprecedented gains in every direction. Republicans elect four out of six congressmen. In Baltimore Dobler (Rep.) defeated Kerr (Dem.) for supreme court judge.

A Clean Sweep.

CHICAGO, Nov. 8.—The state of Illinois is Republican by probably 100,000. The legislature, to elect a senator, is Republican. F. E Downing (Dem.), of the Sixteenth district, is the only Democrat elected to congress from Illinois, all of the other 21 members being Republicans.

Republicans Claim Eight Congressmen.

MILWAUKEE, Nov. 8.—The Republicans of Wisconsin carried the state by over 15,000 plurality for Governor Upham and their state ticket. The Republicans have made gains in almost every voting precinct. The Republicans claim the election of eight and probably nine congressmen.

Assuredly Republican.

SIOUX FALLS, Nov. 8.—Returns indicate that the Republican ticket, including two congressmen-at-large, is elected by no less than 12,000 plurality, and the legislature will be two-thirds Republican. Pierre, the capital, has rolled up the largest Republican majority ever known there.

Usual Democratic Victory Claimed.

GALVESTON, Nov. 8.—The Galveston News claims the usual Democratic majority for state officers and the legislature in Texas, also the election of Democratic congressmen in all the districts, with possible exception of the Ninth and Tenth.

Republican Wave Swept Iowa.

DES MOINES, Nov. 8.—The Republicans appear to have made a clean sweep in Iowa, and nine Republican and one Populist congressmen have been elected. The indications are that the Republicans have carried this state by a plurality of 65,000.

Vote Fell Off.

LITTLE ROCK, Nov. 8.—Returns from principal counties foreshadow the election of a solid Democratic delegation. The Republican vote did not "pan out" as was expected, and the Democratic vote fell off fully as much as was anticipated.

Straight Republican.

BISMARCK, N. D., Nov. 8.—Returns indicate the election to congress of Johnson (Rep.) by 10,000. Also the election of Allin (Rep.) and the entire state ticket by 4000 plurality. The legislature is overwhelmingly Republican.

Republicans Got Everything.

CHEYENNE, Wy., Nov. 8.—Returns so far received indicate the election of the entire Republican state ticket. Mondell (Rep.) is elected for congress, and the legislature will elect two Republican United States senators.

Mormons Voted For Republicans.

BOISE CITY, Nov. 8.—The entire Republican ticket is elected by 2000 majority or more. The returns indicate that the legislature will be Republican. Mormons' votes have been strongly Republican.

All Republicans.

TRENTON, Nov. 8.—New Jersey sends a solid Republican delegation to congress, and when the legislature meets will name a Republican to succeed John R. McPherson in the senate.

Favorable to Republicans.

SANTA FE, Nov. 8.—Returns indicate the election of T. C. Catron (Rep.) for delegate. The legislature is still in doubt, the chances being favorable for a Republican majority.

The Vote of Montana.

HELENA, Mon., Nov. 8.—Hartman (Rep.) for congress, and Hunt (Rep.) for associate justice, are undoubtedly elected. The legislature will be Republican by 15 on joint ballot.

Budd Is Ahead.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 8.—About one-half the entire vote of the state is counted, and the result indicates that Budd (Dem.) for governor has a plurality of 7000.

A national subscription is to be started for the purpose of erecting a monument to the late czar in the capital.

Trip Is Off.

ROCHESTER, Nov. 8.—Frank Albert was endeavoring to beat the bicycle road record between New York and Chicago. While in a restaurant in this city eating his supper, his wheel was stolen, and he had to abandon his trip.

Wrecked Near Halifax.

HALIFAX, Nov. 8.—The schooner Annie H. Pride is a total wreck near Bear Cove, 10 miles from this city, and all her crew of 14 men were drowned. She was bound for Halifax from Nabou with a cargo of lime.

Two Passengers Killed.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 8.—An express on the Reading railway struck a street car at Nicetown, throwing it 50 feet from the track. Two passengers were killed outright and several others badly injured.

Cholera In Soldiers' Barracks.

BERLIN, Nov. 8.—The Tagblatt says that 170 men belonging to a regiment stationed at Glogau, Prussian Silesia, are suffering from a cholerale disorder. The barracks have been isolated.
